CASH GIVES UP HOPE THAT BOY, 5, STILL LIVES

Florida Man Talks With Chief G-man In Effort To Uncover Clues

CHILD'S BODY HUNTED

Possible Enemies Checked By Investigators

PRINCETON, Fla., June 4 — (UP)—James B. Cash, Sr., said today he has abandoned hope that his kidnaped son Jimmy still is alive. He said he feared it might take a week or 10 days to find the body in the tangled Everglades of Southern Florida.

Hollow-eyed and weary after a week spent in frantic efforts to locate the blue-eyed five-year old boy, Cash said he has resigned himself to the conviction that his son is dead. During the hectic days since the boy was kidnaped and the $10,000 ransom was paid, the father had clung to the fading hope that he would see his son alive once more.

"I have now given up all hope of finding my son alive," he said this morning.

The small town businessman whose son was kidnaped from his baby bed one week ago tonight, was convinced the body will be found. His views were in contrast to those of many searchers who participated in the most exhaustive manhunt ever undertaken in Florida.

If the body is in this area, they believed, it never will be found.

Strain Evidenced

Cash talked with newspapermen today for the first time since the abduction. He displayed obvious indications of the strain under which he has lived since the kidnaping. Mrs. Cash, near prostration and under care of a physician since loss of her only child, appeared with her husband.

The father told of his conversation last night with J. Edgar (Continued on Page Eight)

How a small group of men with an original investment of $5 got control of seven investment trusts with combined assets of $16,000,000 was told to the Securities and Exchange Commission in New York by witnesses. Six of the group, including Ralph H. Robb, Boston lawyer, above, are under indictment following investigation by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

U. S. TO BOOST PURCHASES OF SURPLUS FOODS

WASHINGTON, June 4—(UP)—The administration planned today to increase its purchases of farm surpluses for distribution among the unemployed.

Plans by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation to expand purchases sharply were disclosed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley, D., Ky.

Wallace directed the corporation to cooperate immediately with state and local relief organizations in determining the extent of unmet need for food and clothing among people on relief.

Barkley attached an amendment to the recovery-relief bill, passed by the senate last night, authorizing the use of $125,000,000 for direct relief purposes. It would be provided out of the $1,425,000,000 W. P. A. appropriation and used principally for the purchase of commodities for needy unemployed.

The corporation has $17,000,000 for purchases this month and has estimated that it will have $75,000,000 available for the fiscal year beginning July 1. This money is set aside from 36 percent of import duties for removal of farm surpluses.

During the first 11 months of this fiscal year $28,000,000 was spent for farm surpluses, officials said. They expect to spend the full $17,000,000 in June.

SATURDAY LAST DAY FOR REWARD FOR BOY'S BODY

Saturday was the last day for payment of a reward offered for recovery of the body of Clarence Fowler, 16, of Maplewood avenue and Huston street, who drowned in the Scioto river on May 21 while swimming near the W. Main street bridge.

No announcement was made by the family Saturday as to the continuation of the reward. Members of the sheriff's department and civilians have searched the river daily for the body.

SEVENTY-FOUR SENIORS HEAR JUDGE CARL V. WEYGANDT AT ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT RITES

Emily Gunning and David Jackson Receive Kiwanis Club Keys; Lawrence Goeller Honored by Chamber of Commerce

By Franklin Kibler

Closing chapters in the high school careers of 74 young men and women were added Friday evening in the eightieth annual commencement in Circleville high school auditorium.

For the first time in the school's history, graduates wore dark blue caps and gowns, a distinctive feature of the impressive exercises. Graduates were seated on the stage in a banked formation.

Baskets of flowers decorated the stage.

Scholarship keys of the Circleville Kiwanis club were awarded to Miss Emily Gunning and David L. Jackson. The keys are given to the outstanding girl and boy of the class decided on the basis of scholastic standings and extra-curricular activities. Miss Gunning, class valedictorian, is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Gunning, E. Main street. Mr. Jackson is the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Jackson, N. Scioto street.

Bouquet to Goeller
The Chamber of Commerce bouquet, awarded monthly to a citizen who has performed an outstanding service to the community, was presented to Lawrence E. Goeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Goeller, Beverly road. Selection of the graduate to receive the bouquet was made by the faculty group. Young Goeller's work on the annual won him the honor. Presentation of the awards was made by Robert H. Terhune, principal.

Carl V. Weygandt, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme court, urged graduates to obtain further education and make proper use of that education when it is acquired in his address on the topic "Education's Challenge."

"Even though times are difficult the opportunity is present for any boy or girl who desires further education, and is willing to work, to obtain that education," the speaker said. "Acquire as much further education as it is possible for you to obtain."

"A genuine sacrifice has been made that you young folk might obtain your first major objective. How residents enjoy complaining about taxes. Their least complaint is about the money for schools. This experiment in education is costing us something, but if these graduates are finer young men and women the investors may have been more than satisfied."

Music in School Praised
The speaker praised the music presented during the program and the important part it plays in the school. "Those pupils may lay away their musical instruments but they will never lay away their capacity to appreciate music," he said.

In speaking of the opportunities given for further education Judge Weygandt cited the wisdom of the designers of the Ordinance of 1787 when they incorporated in it the provision "Religion, morality, and knowledge, being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged." He pointed out (Continued on Page Eight)

Richard Mader, member of the 1938 graduating class, is the fifth member of the John F. Mader family to be graduated from Circleville high school since 1920.

Other members of the family and the years of their graduation are—Mrs. Claude Kraft, 1920; Mary, 1921; Mac Mader and Mrs. Myra Rader, 1924; Martha, 1930; Jane, 1932; John, 1933, and Marjorie, 1936.

LYLE BECOMES NEW MEMBER OF CARAVAN PARTY

Another Circleville youth has been added to the Northwest Territory caravan now touring Illinois. He is James Lyle, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lyle, 154 W. Mount street.

Young Lyle, graduate of Circleville high school in 1935, has been employed recently by Frank Lynch. He attended Ohio University, Athens, after leaving high school. Lyle left Saturday afternoon to join the caravan. He received notification of his appointment to the troupe Friday.

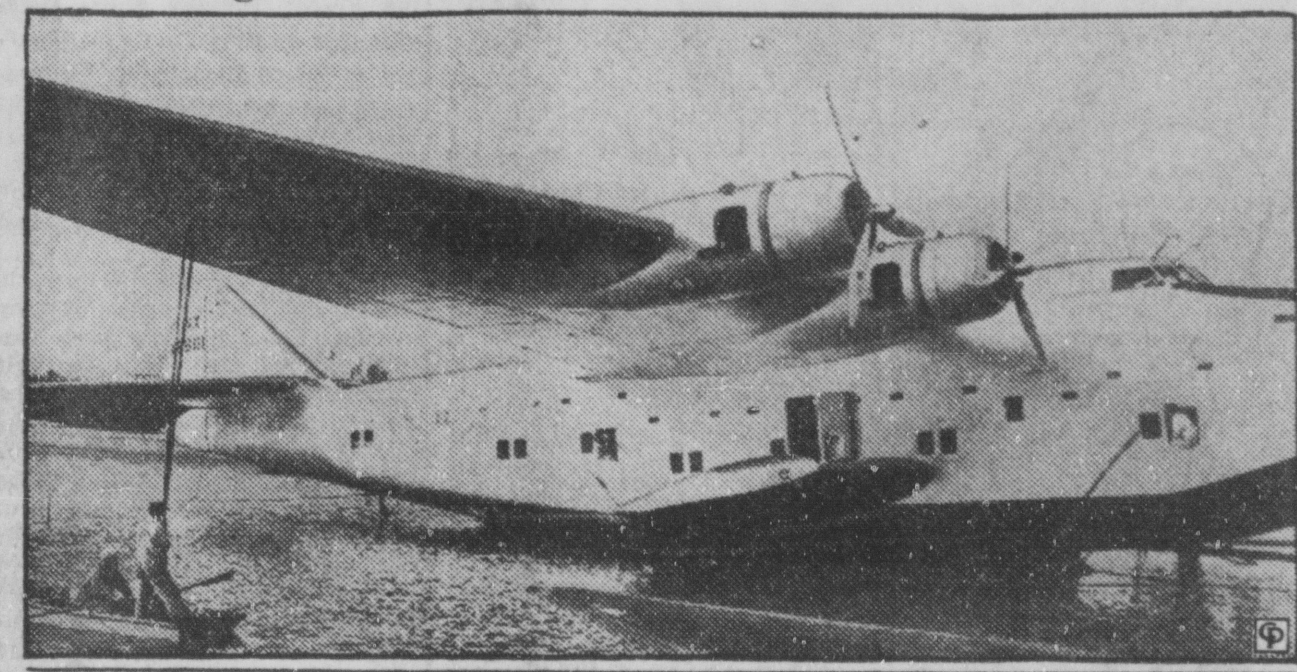

Youths are being added to the troupe to replace some of the original members who have accepted positions.

William Kellstadt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, N. Court street, has been with the troupe since it started from Ipswich, Mass., last fall.

Walnut Township Youths Win Convention Honors

Robert Balthaser and Everett Beers Named "State Farmers"; Clinton County Boy New President

Robert Balthaser and Everett Beers, members of the active Walnut township Future Farmers of America chapter, were honored Friday at the F. F. A. convention in Columbus when they were designated as "state farmers", the highest award available for members of the organization.

Eighty-five other Ohio F. F. A. members were honored with the award.

Donald Bernard, 18, who lives on a Clinton county farm and raises championship Southdown sheep, is the new president of Ohio's Future Farmers.

He was elected to succeed Donald Capper of Van Wert. Robert Rarey, Hilliards, is the new vice president; Lawrence Sarbough, Muskingum county, secretary; Harold Crone, Ashland, treasurer, and Bert Showman, Liberty Center, reporter.

Four Win Camping Trip
The Danforth award, for all-around work in high school, went to Earl Rindfuss, Bucyrus; Loren Miller, Marion county; Larry Zehner, Dola, and Elton Berry, Medina. They will be given a two-week expenses paid camping trip.

Awards for news writing went to Lawrence Duvall, Ridge township, Van Wert county; John Kamsforth, Canal Winchester, and Jesse Curtis, Kenton.

The dairy judging team of Bernell Hansel, James Ufferman and Leonard Hough of Delaware Willis high school won first place in state competition and will win trips to the national Future Farmers congress in Kansas City next fall. The team is coached by E. R. Smith.

Sharon high school, Medina county, was second and Houston high, Shelby county, third.

Paul Cline, Suffield, won individual judging honors. Hansel was second and Gordon Rogers, Ridge township, Van Wert county, was third.

CZECHS DECREE GAS MASKS FOR MOVIE PATRONS

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 4—(UP)—The government today ordered all motion picture theatres to provide gas masks for employees and patrons within one month.

Local police were ordered to allot gas mask quotas to theatres in each town on the basis of seating capacity.

Regarding a German complaint that a Czech soldier had forcibly removed a German flag from the home of a German citizen at Niederulldorf, it was reported that the government had notified the German legation of the incident and promised to punish the soldier, even before the complaint was made.

This incident, and another in which it was alleged that a German citizen was mistreated at Maehrisch, caused foreign diplomatic quarters here to believe that the minority situation might become grave again.

JAPAN IGNORES RAID PROTESTS

Airplanes Drop More Bombs On Canton; 1,000 More Reported Dead

HONG KONG, June 4—(UP)—Unconfirmed estimates put the dead and wounded at 1,000 in a Japanese air raid on Canton today. It was asserted that the Japanese planes bombed extensively in all parts of the city.

After 11 days of attack in the senate by the combined forces of Republicans and anti-New Deal Democrats, the recovery bill emerged unscathed. No restrictions were placed on the spending and lending of vast sums to create jobs for approximately 4,000,000 of the unemployed army which, Mr. Roosevelt said, has increased since he requested the money six weeks ago.

As approved by the senate the legislation is a triumph for the President, who had demanded a free hand in spending the huge fund, and a stinging defeat for the anti-New Deal coalition which had sought to earmark the money as a safeguard against political reprisals.

Although the heaviest barrage of opposition was based on the charge that the money would become a huge "slush fund" in fortcoming primaries and elections to influence voters in favor of New Deal candidates, only three Democrats and seven Republicans voted against it.

Only one limitation was placed on Mr. Roosevelt's spending authority and it was imposed with administration consent. The President will be permitted to divert only $125,000,000 of the proposed $1,425,000,000 Works Progress administration fund to direct relief.

Not Largest Bill
Despite its size the bill is not the largest appropriation in history, or even of the New Deal. The 1938 relief appropriation topped it with a total of $4,880,000,000.

The measure represents a broad political philosophy covering virtually all the major activities of the Roosevelt administration. Its funds will be used to provide jobs for needy unemployed in works and building projects; to rehabilitate needy farmers; to aid youths unable to get a foothold in private employment; to clear slums and (Continued on Page Eight)

YOUTH WHO HIT COUNTY WOMAN LODGED IN JAIL

Daniel Glenn, 17, was placed in the county jail for juvenile court Friday night by the sheriff's department.

Glenn, a ward of juvenile court, was sought by officers after he struck Mrs. William Creager of near Ashville on the head with a piece of garden hose. The youth had resided at the Creager home. He was formerly in the Children's home. Glenn ran away from the Creager home after the incident. Mrs. Creager was dazed but not seriously injured.

The youth returned to the Creager home Friday night and officers were called. He was brought to Circleville by Deputy Sheriff's Miller Fissell and Earl Weaver.

COURT OF HONOR TO BE HELD IN KINGSTON HALL

Quarterly Court of Honor ceremonial for recognizing the achievements of Boy Scouts of the Pickaway district will be held in Kingston, Wednesday, June 22. Ed Ebert is chairman of the committee on Scout advancement.

This will be the first time the court has been held in Kingston. It will be conducted in the Presbyterian church, home of Troop No. 5 of which L. E. Hill is scoutmaster.

The district flag will be presented to the troop responsible for the largest delegation of parents present. It had previously been awarded to the troop having the largest number of advancements.

Mr. Ebert will be in charge of the program.

BIG BILL LEE PITCHES CUBS NEARER LEAD WITH THIRD STRAIGHT SHUTOUT

CHICAGO HURLER BEATS COMPLEX TO PACE MATES

Indians Rally Late To Win
From Philadelphia Crew;
Cincinnati Loses

NEW YORK, June 4—(UP)—The transformation of Big Bill Lee of the Chicago Cubs from one of those "hold your breath" hurlers into baseball's foremost pitcher as of today forms the background for the most intriguing study in psychology to be found on the sports pages.

Lee, an easy-going, soft-spoken southerner from Plaquemine, La., was hanging on the ragged edge the morning of May 19. Manager Charlie Grimm didn't know what to do with him. Dizzy Dean was a problem but Grimm knew what was the matter with him. He had a sore arm. But Lee wasn't sick or ailing. He had plenty of stuff but he just couldn't win. He was a case for the psychiatrists.

Five times he had started and never been able to finish. Once he had a 12-run lead and had to have a relief in the ninth. It looked like he was forever doomed to be a pitcher who couldn't conquer himself. Then the players began to say that Lee was a quitter—that he didn't have any moxie.

That was what they were saying on the morning of May 19. But they aren't saying it any more. Lee went out that day and beat the Giants, 1-0, in 10 innings. But that was a victory for Lee over Lee, not over the Giants. When he walked off the mound his teammates shook hands with him and patted his shoulder. Lee believed in himself once more.

Including that game he has won five straight games, four of them by shutouts. For his last 46 innings he has the phenomenal record of having allowed only one run. He pitched his third straight shutout yesterday to beat the Boston Bees, 4-0, and the Cubs moved within a game and a half of the National league lead.

The Giants lost their fourth straight, bowing to Pittsburgh, 6-5. The Pirates made all six runs in the second to drive Harry Gumbert off the mound.

After spotting Cincinnati four runs in the first inning Brooklyn came from behind to beat the Reds, 5-4. Van Muno hurled two-hit ball after the first inning until he was relieved for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. Dolf Camilli's single in the ninth drove in the winning run.

Catcher Mickey Owen's single in the 11th drove in the winning run which gave the St. Louis Cardinals and 8-7 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

American Leaders Win
The three American league leaders put on six-run rallies in the eighth to overcome the Athletics, 10-5, and give Johnny Allen his seventh victory. Triples by Averill and Trosky and doubles by Keltner and Campbell featured the big rally.

Scoring four runs in the fourth the Yankees knocked off the Tigers, 5-1, as Red Ruffing won his sixth straight game. Joe Dimaggio hit homer No. 7. Wes Ferrell held the White Sox to six hits in pitching Washington to a 5-1 victory over Chicago. It was Ferrell's eighth victory. Al Simmons hit a homer with a mate on base. The Red Sox and Browns were rained out.

YESTERDAY'S HERO—Big Bill Lee, Chicago Cubs' right-hander, who won his fifth straight game, and pitched his fourth shutout in 16 days.

How Can Jake Powell Be Protected?
Is This Another Job for the Umpires?
What Casey Stengel Would Do About It

Joe McCarthy demands protection from the umpires for Jake Powell. Joe says all the pitchers around the league have been dusting off Mister Powell, and it's high time steps were taken to stop it.

Well, what are the umpires supposed to do? Suppose Johnny Allen is pitching, and his dear friend Bill McGowan is wearing the pad. When Powell comes to bat, should Mr. McGowan take Mr. Powell out to the mound and, after proper introductions all around, ask Mr. Allen please not to pitch inside to Mr. Powell because he doesn't like 'em there? "I say, old boy, it isn't cricket, you know!"

You can hear Mr. McGowan cajoling Mr. Allen. "You will be careful now, won't you, John?" And it is not hard to imagine Mr. Allen's polite response, something like:

along the general line of "Aw nuts!"

What should they throw when Powell is batting, a picnic ball? After all, Mac, this isn't bean-bag. And if a pitcher could control that apple perfectly at all times, why does the foolish fellow issue so many bases on balls? Should they erect a wire cage around Mr. Powell, or let the chap wear a helmet and suit of armor?

Why should pitchers dust off Jake Powell? Is he the only man in the major leagues the pitchers have a grudge against? Isn't Jake popular? Or, is it that they like to watch him duck? Perhaps he's extra cute about it, and it's such fun, the way he folds up on inside pitch. Still another theory we might as well pass along is that maybe Mr. Powell is an old fraidy-cat. Or, as we used to say in the Three-Eye, he's a scart.

Cobb Needed No Help

Marse Joe's plea for protection for Mister Powell might be construed wrongly by the pitchers who read about it. They might take the meaning to be that Jake can't take care of the matter himself, something that ball players always were enthusiastically ready to do in an earlier baseball day, say when Ty Cobb was going good. They used to dust off the Georgia Peach, too, but Hughey Jennings never had to ask anybody for help for Mister Cobb.

It might have been better if Joe hadn't demanded protection, because there are pitchers who will toss that apricot close to a guy if they know he is just a little bit funny that way.

The chances are that Jake can take pretty good care of himself if left to his own devices. He lost no time moving in on McKain, the Red Sox pitcher who nicked him on the foot. And when Joe Cronin got a stranglehold on Powell under the stands after both had been chased from the field, Jake was beginning to claw his way right through Joe's features.

That's the way batters used to insure themselves against that bean ball, and they're still doing it in the old-fashioned way. If a pitcher knows that he is getting himself all lined up for a smack on the jaw by knocking down the batter, he soon acquires the habit of not dusting off said opponent.

Stengel's System

Can the Yankees be softening up? This is still baseball, isn't it? I don't think you will hear Casey Stengel plead for protection for his Bees, for Casey clings to the ancient idea that a man ought to be able to take care of himself, whether it's on a ball diamond, or in a saloon. The pitchers used to let one go at Stengel's conk once in a while, but he made his own arrangements toward curbing the practice without appealing to the president of the league. For reference, consult the case of Stengel vs. Phil Weinert. The scene was under the stands in Philly. Whenever a hitter comes in to Casey and reports he thinks the pitcher has been trying to dust him off, Casey merely replies: "When I was playing we didn't think he was trying to flatten us out, we knew it. I used to spend an average of three weeks per season sitting in the dirt at home plate."

SOFTBALL LOOP RESUMES PLAY NEXT MONDAY

Fenton Cleaners And Purina Feeds Play; Buskirk Decision Reached

Recreation ball teams will resume competition Monday evening after a week filled with excellent contests and a renewed interest in the league. Monday's game puts the Fenton Cleaners against Purina Feeds; Tuesday finds Circleville Oilis meeting Cain's food market of South Bloomfield; Wednesday's joust is between the Bronzeville Jollies and Glitt's food market; Thursday pits Blue Ribbon dairy against Eselman Feeds, and Friday lists Purina Feeds against Cain's market.

League managers, meeting in The Daily Herald office Friday evening, voted that Leonard Buskirk, one of the city's speediest hurlers, belongs to the Purina Feeds, the team with whom he signed to play, and not the Blue Ribbon dairy whom he played the first game. At the suggestion of Merle Davis, acting manager for the dairy crew, the game played by the Blue Ribbons against the Bronzeville Jollies will be eliminated from the records because Buskirk played in it. The contest was set down for July 12.

All teams must submit their final player lists to the league president or the umpire-in-chief before they take the field for their games next week. The league rule reads that all player lists must be final before the second game is played. After that all trades, releases or addition of players by any method is subject to approval of all league managers.

INDIANS SMACK APPLE TO WIN AGAIN, 10 TO 5

WASHINGTON, June 4—(UP)—The Cleveland Indians may not hold on to their American league lead, but diamond experts agreed today that no club will overpower the proteges of Oscar Vitt. As the Tribe came here to open a three game series with the surprising Washington Senators, they had given a convincing demonstration of long distance hitting.

Cleveland won the final game of the series from the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday by a 10 to 5 count and it was sheer power which netted the triumph.

Johnny Allen, on the mound for the Indians, pitched only ordinary ball as he gave up 11 hits, but his mates unleashed a 15 hit attack off three Philadelphia hurlers.

Included in the Cleveland barrage of base hits were two doubles, two triples and a home run. Every man in the Indians lineup, except Lyn Lary, secured at least one hit. The leader of the attack was Hal Trosky, with three safeties.

Philadelphia was off to an early lead when it scored once in the third, again in the fourth and then added three in the fifth.

The Indians launched their slugging spree in the sixth with three runs, clinched the game with a six run spurge in the eighth and added another counter in the ninth on a home run by Ken Keltner, his ninth of the campaign.

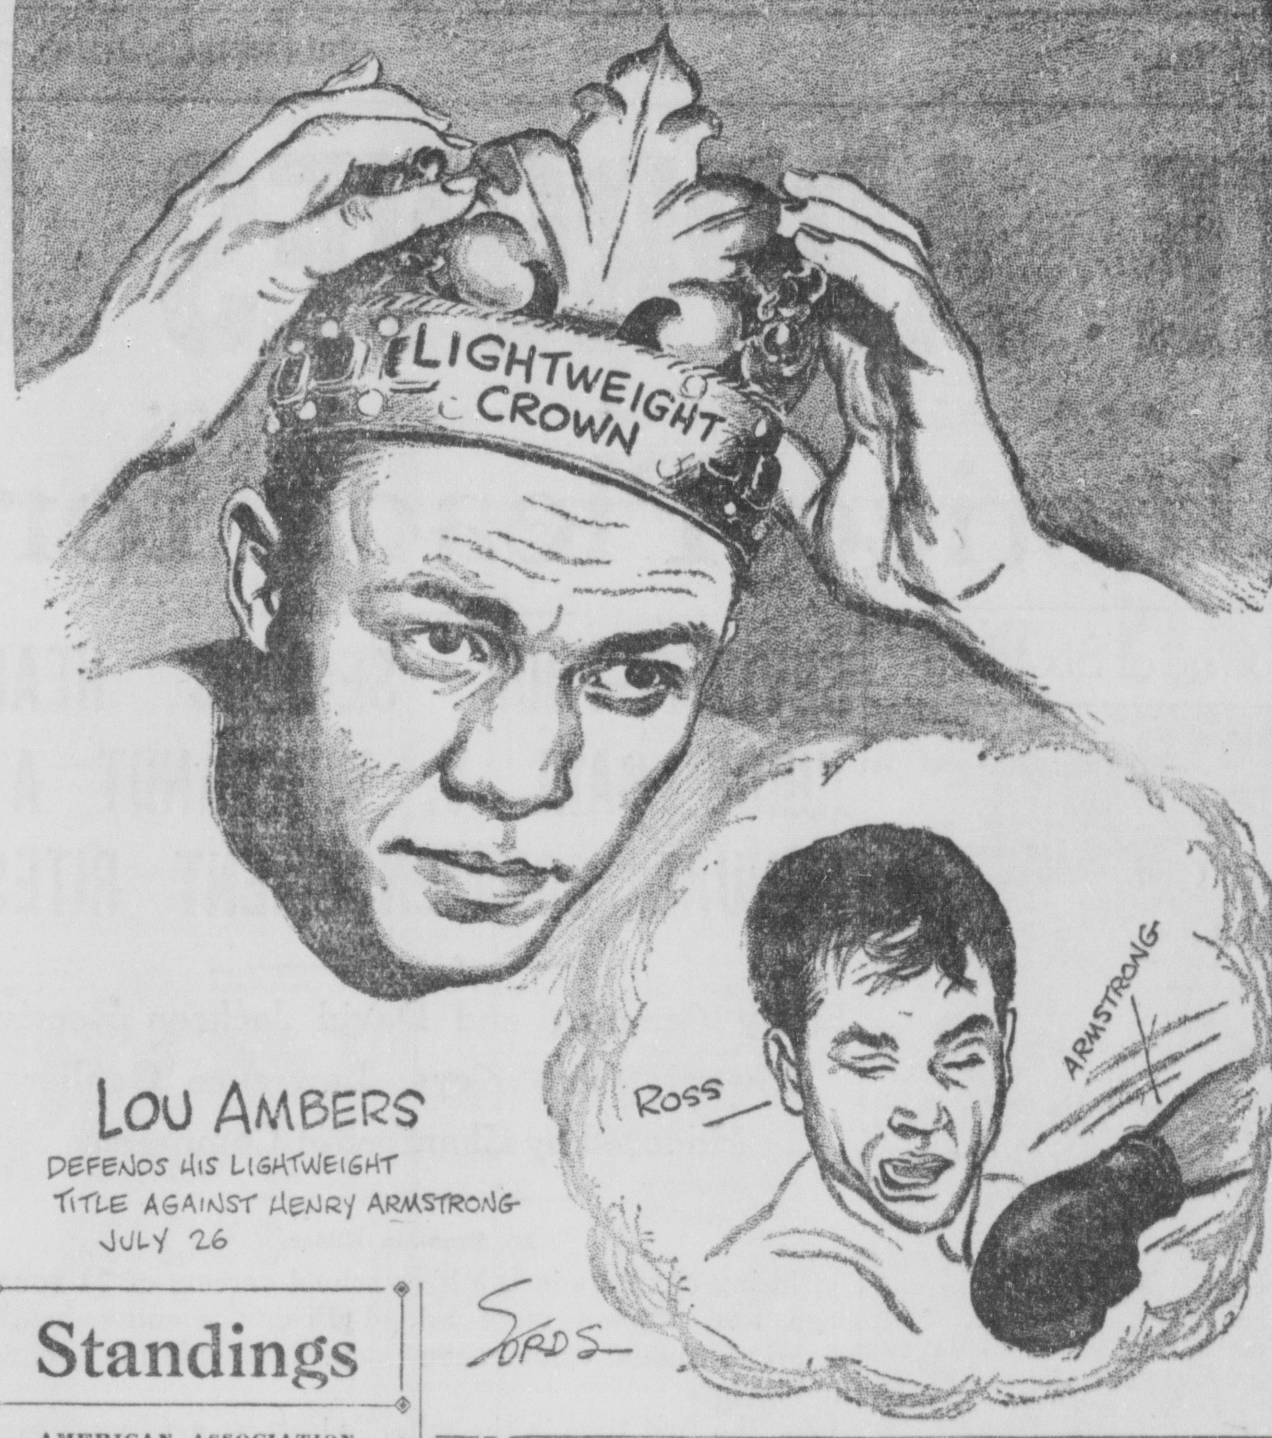

The victory was Allen's seventh straight. The only decision he has dropped was in his initial start of the season.

Bob Feller was slated to pitch the first game of the series here for the Indians. Kendall Chase, rookie southpaw, was to oppose him.

WANER SCORES 2,500 BINGLES IN OLD LEAGUE

PITTSBURGH, June 4—(UP)—When Outfielder Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates smashed out three hits against the New York Giants yesterday, he accomplished what only 29 other batters had accomplished in the history of baseball—hit safely for the 2,500th time.

In addition, he became the only active National league player to have that total. The most recent National league players to reach the 2,500-mark were Frankie Frisch and Rogers Hornsby, but neither of them is now active.

Waner started the season with a total of 2,473 hits in 1,792 games in 12 years with the Pirates.

ONE HALF GAME SEPARATES TWO MINOR SQUADS

COLUMBUS, June 4—(UP)—The bitter battle between Kansas City and Indianapolis for the American Association lead had been intensified today.

Only one-half game separates the two leaders and Indianapolis can take over first place today if it defeats the Blues in the final game of their short series.

John Niggeling, last season a member of the Kansas City pitching staff, gave Indianapolis a 1 to 0 victory over his old mates last night as he came through with one of the finest hurling performances of the year.

Niggeling did not grant a hit for six innings and gave the Blues only two during the entire game.

Jack LaRocca and Marvin Breuer, who shared the hurling duties for the Blues, permitted only two hits likewise, but one of these was a freak double by Bob Fausett that drove in the only run of the contest. LaRocca and Breuer walked nine men, while Niggeling gave up only three passes.

Lloyd Brown gave the fast advancing St. Paul club another triumph when he blanked Toledo, as the Mudhens were beaten 3 to 0. Brown permitted only four hits.

Milwaukee had an easy time as it trounced Louisville 16 to 3 and Columbus turned back Minneapolis 6 to 3.

LOUIS BOUDREAU SIGNS

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 4—(UP)—Louis Boudreau, star athlete and third baseman for the University of Illinois, will report this week to a Class AA, A, or Class B club to be designated by the Cleveland Indians. He signed a contract with the Indians yesterday.

ANNUAL LUTHERAN VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY AT 8:30

ALL CHILDREN OF COMMUNITY ARE ELIGIBLE

Stories, Dramatics, Songs, Handwork, Other Features Offered

Twelfth annual vacation Bible school of Trinity Lutheran church will open Monday, June 6, at 8:30 a. m. in the parish house.

The Bible school, financed by the Brotherhood and under the direction of the Rev. G. L. Troutman, will be held five days a week for three weeks. Sessions last two hours.

All children of the community between the ages of five and 16 are eligible to attend the school. It is free. Purpose of the school is to give Christian training.

Teachers Listed
Teachers for the primary department include Miss Annabelle Barch, superintendent; Miss Martha Reid, Miss Anna Fellmeth and Miss Martha Goeller. Those for the junior department are Miss Betty Fischer, Miss Elsie Brehmer and the Rev. Mr. Troutman.

The primary course will include Bible stories, handwork, acting songs, dramatics, Bible study with screen slides and a novelty period consisting of picture puzzles, memory work, missionary stories and supervised recreation.

Activities of the junior course include Bible stories, object lessons, construction work, dramatics, music, novelty period and supervised recreation.

Picnic on June 24

A picnic will be held for all who attend the school on Friday, June 24. Public presentation of certificates will be made on June 26 at the morning service. Those eligible for this reward will be all who were not absent more than one day and have completed the course.

The Bible school will have charge of both services on Sunday, June 26. A play, "Life of David," will be presented by members of the junior department.

MUSICAL NUMBER TO BE REPEATED BY QUARTET

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, pastor of the First Presbyterian church will preach Sunday on the theme "Choice of Endurance."

The Rev. Mr. Kelsey explained that we endure through our choices. "Correct choices will lead to endurance," he said.

By request the mixed quartet will sing the anthem "Remember Now Thy Creator," by Adams. It was presented by the quartet during the baccalaureate service last Sunday evening. The quartet is comprised of Mrs. Clark Will, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mack Parrett, Jr.

Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, organist, will play "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," by Rachmaninoff; "Romance," by Gluck, and "Recession," by Ralph Kinder.

Flower prints in elastic satin are favored for bathing suits.

Personal Devotion to Christ

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 14:3-11; 27-31

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

A few months before Jesus' death he was a guest at the home of Mary and Martha, and Mary sat at his feet and listened to him, learning much of his coming death at the hands of his enemies.

The last week of Jesus' life he was again in Bethany, and Mary anointed Jesus' head with precious ointment. Judas criticized her act as wasteful. But Jesus commended Mary for anointing him beforehand for burial.

After criticizing Mary's act of devotion Judas went out and bargained with Jesus' enemies for thirty pieces of silver as his price for help in delivering Jesus to them without violence.

After Judas left the group around the supper table Jesus warned the other disciples that all of them would forsake him that night and that Peter would even deny that he knew Jesus. (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 14:8.)

Mark 14:8—"She hath done what she could."

THE EVEREST CLIMBERS

THEY are climbing Mount Everest again. The 1938 British Mount Everest Expedition has set up its base camp 12 miles below that unconquered peak and is preparing for a new assault.

The immediate tasks are the arrangement of supplies, the acclimating of the expedition, and a medical check-up. Next a chain of higher camps will be prepared. Then the strategy of approach must be mapped. H. W. Tilman, leader of the expedition, writes modestly and poetically: "For this year there shall be no predictions. It is safe to foretell that one point of constant attraction at the base camp, these early days, will be the big mounted telescope trained upon the sphinxlike silhouette of Everest itself, its topostom silvery pyramid, its ridges and snowfields, ledges upon its relentless walls already reached by flagging human feet in earlier assaults, and the cloud plumes that rush tauntingly across its upper acclivities."

That telescope may bring the peak nearer to their vision, not to their weary bodies.

Everest, he reminds his readers, is 29,002 feet high. To those whose thoughts are concentrated on scaling the peak to the last inch, that "odd couple of feet" seems a special challenge. "Could it—the top of the pinnacle—be detached and brought home?" Mr. Tilman asks. This Summer may finish this tale of adventure—or merely another chapter.

COMPLAINERS

A SWISS gentleman who visited this country recently writes to an American friend expressing his wonder at the worried and discontented spirit here. We complain that business is very bad, and we seem much distressed by it. Yet we ride to work in fine cars, are well dressed, live in excellent houses, and regard as necessities the telephones, radios and other modern things which are luxuries in other lands.

They do not have our standard of living in Switzerland, or in other European countries, he says, but they have what he thinks is better—a feeling of contentment with simple and modest blessings, which they would not exchange for our wealth and the discontent that goes with it.

This man, perhaps, like most foreign visitors, misjudges the situation somewhat. The wealth and luxury he has seen are not really typical. He probably did not see or talk with representative millions of unemployed living in want, or on public relief or W. P. A. jobs. But his misconception is natural.

We seem to have this strange situation—that the great numbers of people with-

Of course Dick and his brothers and sisters deserve congratulations, but the scrivener extends his congratulations to the fine parents, for putting nine children through high school is a really worth-while accomplishment.

The inspired compositor somewhat confused the statement regarding Memorial Day celebration. The scrivener wrote "I am firmer than ever in my conviction that we give too much consideration to those already slain in battle and not enough to those yet to be legally murdered."

First Aid Hints For Every Week in Year

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE NEWSPAPERS carried good publicity accounts for First Aid Week which was May 15 to 21, but there is no reason why every week should not be First Aid Week. At least a reminder is due more often than once a year.

First aid in the home begins with prevention. Attention to the prevention of home accidents is more important than any other because they are more numerous; they are more frequent than automobile accidents, or industrial accidents, or outdoor accidents (including drownings) of all kinds.

The amazing figure of 5,658,500 accidents is given as the annual total of home accidents in the United States in 1936.

Half of all home accidents are caused by falls. Next most frequent are burns. Then follow cuts, wounds, asphyxiation, electrocution and carbon monoxide inhalation.

As to prevention: (1) Furniture out of place in a dark bedroom, (2) shoes in the middle of the floor and (3) buckets or brooms left on the kitchen steps—can all easily be avoided. But no matter how often we may warn people those examples of carelessness still occur.

Other good rules are:

Never take medicine from a cabinet in the dark.

More Rules

Never leave pots containing hot foods on the stove where small children can upset them. (Dreadful scars on the face and chest are usually the consequence of neglecting this rule.)

Never touch electric appliances while taking a bath.

Never leave anything boiling on the gas stove when someone is asleep.

The home medicine cabinet is the first aid station when an accident has occurred.

Advice is regularly sought as to what to put in the home medicine cabinet.

But, as my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, says, the more urgent advice concerns what to take out of the home medicine closet.

Take out that bottle of lotion that was prescribed for Susie's hives back in 1934. It sits there pathetically waiting for another case of the identical kind to break out in the family. Meanwhile the powder has sunk down to the bottom of the bottle and a somewhat pinky stained semi-clear fluid remains on top. No one remembers exactly what it was originally used for; and there is no hint to be gained on the label of the bottle itself which reads austere: "Apply locally." There, though, in spite of these obstacles to utility, it sits through the drums and trampings of four spring housecleanings.

Surgical, sterile gauze, adhesive tape, a bottle of tincture of iodine for application to cuts, a bottle of boric acid solution for the eyes after dust storms and dusty rides, a tube of zinc oxide ointment for skin troubles, some oil spray for the nose: that is about all it is safe or healthy to leave in the medicine chest. Cathartics, digestive powders and old cough mixtures are best in the ash can. Worse for the ash can, but better for the family.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to: Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Poems That Live

FRIENDS

How good to lie a little while
And look up through the tree!
The Sky is like a kind big smile
Bent sweetly over me.

The Sunshine flickers through the lace
Of leaves above my head,
And kisses me upon the face
Like Mother, before bed.

The Wind comes stealing o'er the grass
To whisper pretty things;
And though I cannot see him pass,
I feel his careful wings.

So many gentle Friends are near
Whom one can scarcely see,
A child should never feel a fear,
Wherever he may be.

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Entranced by the southwest country, and in love with a footloose Texan, Ellen Dale, Hollywood screen star, has just decided to purchase an Arizona ranch and forsake her film career. A few days at the ranch of the wealthy Mexican Montoya family, which extended its hospitality to Ellen and Bill after a lucky parachute jump from Baron's plane during a storm, had given both the young actress and the Texan a new viewpoint on life. At Nogales, where Bill had driven Ellen to return to Hollywood, she makes her new decision and asks him to manage the ranch she plans to buy. He accepts but is hesitant to speak of his love for her because of his position and her wealth. They find the type of ranch they desire in the vast Durango property, 6,000 neglected acres in a beautiful Arizona setting. Back in Nogales, Ellen determines to do all she can to become a popular citizen of Nogales, placing her film career squarely behind her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 24

BREAKFAST next morning included an hour of planning, in which Ellen reiterated her desire to be settled in her own new home. "If you're in such a hurry to get on your ranch, I can arrange it," Bill told her. "You can move out today."

"But there's no house!"

"No. And won't be for a while yet. But did you ever live in a tent?"

Ellen Dale had been born in Brooklyn, reared figuratively in a subway, worked in a crowded five-and-ten-cent store, then in Hollywood. Tents were just things some of the movie producers used occasionally for outdoor scenes.

"I could learn," said Ellen, gamely.

"Wolves will howl."

"Will they?"

"Yes. And coyotes. Ever hear a coyote? Ever see one?"

"No, Bill. Are they dangerous?"

"No. But they sound like ban-shes, or worse. I have had Mexican families moved out. They can squat in lean-tos or anything. You can have a big wall tent beside your stream, and the Mexican lady can be chaperon."

"I think it would be fun! I won't be scared much."

"I'll give you a gun, two guns. You can practice outdoor craft while we build the ranch home. But I'm more worried about your getting lonely more than anything else."

"Will you be there, part of the time?"

"All of the time. Until you fire me. I expect to supervise the construction work. And get the ranch going as agreed."

"I'll go out today," Ellen said.

Some of her personal things had already been shipped from her Hollywood apartment, and Ellen spent an hour this morning adding to them. She bought several books, among other things. And magazines, clothing, shoes, a portable phonograph, a battery radio, a typewriter, stationery. Bill met her at 10 o'clock, and bought a saddle that "fitted" her well; and pistols, shot gun, rifle, and abundant ammunition. He bought a small truck, too, saying it would be constantly needed at the ranch and would come in handy at the start.

"I've spotted four horses," he told her. "They'll come out this afternoon. I'll load the tent and all the duffel on the truck now, and you can start out with it."

"Me?" Ellen looked her inquiry too.

"Sure, you. If you're going to be a rancher, be a rancher. Never heard of a ranch woman who couldn't drive a truck. It's a light-weight one. Listen, sis, if you hang around me long—I mean, if you let me hang around long as foreman of the DD—I'll have you learning to milk cows!"

"Bill!"

"Sure! Glory, you don't think ranching is like living at the Biltmore?"

He grinned broadly, and she stuck out her tongue saucily at him.

"All right, smarty! I will drive it, then! And milk the cows, too. See if I don't!"

He had, as a matter of fact, been joking about most of it. But after all a truck is just a work-model car, with the same general controls, Ellen drove it out of the dealer's place and down the street without any trouble. Bill glowed with pride for her.

"The kid's got nerve," he murmured.

Ellen had on her "work" clothes (although she looked more like a model from Fifth avenue) and so did considerable manual labor. She helped load the truck, and started out alone.

"Hey!" Bill shouted. "Whoa up! It's not enough to have nerve, missy. You gotta think, too. Where you plan to eat? And what? And in this southwestern country, a canteen of drink water is always in the height of style!"

Contrite, she left her driver's seat and waited. He teased a bit more, and bought some food for her to carry, purchased five-gallon and two-quart canteens—the latter for saddle or shoulder carrying—and then put them in her truck.

"Okay, kid, high-tail it out now," he instructed her. "And beware of the wild Injuns. I'll be along in half an hour."

They made two trips that day, the second one to bring the Mexican family. Bill introduced them to their employer, Concepcion Rivera was the mother and wife, a likeable woman, industrious, clean. Her husband was a cow puncher. He had a grown daughter who reputedly was an excellent cook. A teen-age son, handsome as any youngster could possibly be, played a guitar and sang beautifully; said he could dance, make baskets, mix and mold adobe bricks, shoot wild turkeys, trap foxes, do trick roping, read and write, catch fish, and do wood carving. Such versatility merited being put on the pay roll, Bill grinned after chinning with the lad.

"It's $10 a week, Pablo," he told the boy. "Handy man, you. Whatever Miss Dale can think up for you to do, see?"

The boy was made supremely happy. He came, in time, to worship Bill Baron; he became Ellen's abject slave.

He caught the horse she picked out when the first of the remuda arrived. It was a peppery pony, white with brown marks splashed over his hide, and with a curly white silken mane and tail. A "painted horse," Bill told her.

"What'll you name him?" he asked her.

She considered it briefly, admiring the animal.

"What is the Spanish word for 'painted'?" she asked.

"Pintado."

"That's his name, then. Pintado. You like it, Pablo?"

The boy nodded, smiling; Bill voiced his approval, too.

Ellen learned to put on a bridle and saddle. Presently she was mounted and galloping around the place area there.

"Stop posting, cowgirl!" Bill yelled. "That's done only by the elite, which same you ain't one of no more."

"You needn't talk like a hick!" she called back. "The stable master at Beverly Hills taught me to post, so there!"

"I bet he never saw a cow, though. Nor a cow pony. But you'll learn. Say, Pintado's got class!"

"By inference, then, his rider hasn't!"

He laughed at her, waved and turned to his work. He had plenty to do, including erection of her tent and temporary home.

Thoroughly delighted with her mount, Ellen rode on off around the turn in the hill, out of sight. Some intuition, or some memory of conversation with Bill, warned her to get her bearings. She glanced at Mount Wrightson, then at Thunder Peak, which Bill had pointed out before. She couldn't be lost with these as landmarks.

She rode a mile, two miles, up a gradually narrowing canyon.

The rocks presently became more and more intimate, rearing higher, leaning as if to squeeze her and Pintado in. She paused beside a gigantic century plant stalk, a dead flower from last spring, but still 20 feet tall. Other scrubby growths interested her. "This is my land!" she breathed. "My ranch!" It was exhilarating. She had never owned land before, and the possession of no other property in all the world, not even of gold, is so thoroughly satisfying.

Pintado had been in a stable for a week, hence was full of energy himself. He moved rapidly even when walking. He evidently was mountain bred, moved with the sure-footed steps of a goat. Ellen was noting these details and having a perfectly delightful time when a shot startled her.

She halted at once. Bang! Somewhere near—maybe a few hundred yards further up the now brushy, rugged canyon, the shot was repeated.

It frightened her, a little.

"Yoo-hoo!" she called.

She didn't want some hunter to shoot her by accident. Bang! Bang! Two shots answered.

It sounded like a signal, maybe. But she wasn't sure. She debated what to do; finally decided to investigate.

In 10 minutes she had threaded up the brush and rocks and was looking down at a man on the ground. He was an elderly man. A very weird, bearded man, with rough clothing. His rifle lay beside him. He held up one hand, tremulously, and gazed at Ellen with pleading eyes.

For a moment she could only stare down at him, spellbound.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

THE EVERGREEN holly with its shiny, pointed leathery leaves and bright red berries, is a valuable ornamental shrub. To grow happily it should be planted in a rich, moist soil.

If holly is planted in an unfavorable location it may live but it will not thrive. Under favorable conditions leaf spots may develop as shown in this Garden-Graph. Spotted leaves when they occur on holly should be removed and burned. Do not pull the leaves off; instead they should be snipped off with a pair of scissors, close to the stem.

There is only one pest which affects holly, and this is the leaf miner which produces yellowish-brown mines in the green leaves. The young of the leaf miner hatch from eggs laid on the underside of the leaves. To control leaf miner on holly spray with a nicotine-soap solution early in June and again in July.

MOORE, MOFFITT PRESENT VERSION OF DISNEY SHOW

Friday morning and again Tuesday afternoon, Philip Moore presented "Snow White" to the students of Circleville schools for the first time.

The play is Philip Moore's version of Walt Disney's movie. The characters of Snow White, the Queen, the Huntsman, the Prince, the dwarfs—Doc, Sleepy, Grumpy, Bashful, Sneezy, Happy and Dopey—and the Magic Mirror were all made by Philip. Recorded music of the original pieces from the film, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was used.

Dopey completely stole the scenes from the real heroine Snow White. Grumpy also displayed his usual disgruntled disposition. Sneezy still had his hay fever, Doc still stuttered, Sleepy was still yawning, Bashful was as shy as ever, and of course the jolliest one of the bunch was Happy. An unusual feat was performed by the huntsman when he drew his knife from his belt and later cast it away.

The settings were designed by Philip. The Donald Duck band, which made its debut at this program was made by Jim Moffitt.

Assisting Philip were Joanne Conyers, Jim Moffitt, David Orr, stage assistant, Jim Price, and Martin Walters.

FACULTY LEAVES FOR ALL POINTS

Teachers, after bidding fond farewells to the sacred portals of dear old C.H.S. for the Summer, will head for all points north, east, west and south.

Those expecting to remain in Circleville are: Mr. Cress, Mr. Jewett, Miss Ryan and Mr. Watts. Mr. Jewett expects to take a trip west late in the Summer.

Ohio State Summer school will find Mr. Fischer, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Lea, Mr. Pace, and Mr. Terhune in its midst. Mr. Lea will study industrial arts and specializing guidance; Mr. Johnson, dramatics and public speaking; and Mr. Pace, French, Spanish, public speaking, and art. Mr. Fischer and Mr. Terhune expect to receive Master's degrees this Summer.

Miss Sayre will be in a girl scout camp at Cincinnati for two weeks and then in Fort Wayne for eight weeks.

Miss Brown expects to go to Yellowstone National Park; Mrs. Downing, to Booth Bay Studios, Maine; Miss Grosvenor, to Michigan; Miss Mattinson, to South Charleston and then to Pensacola, Florida, for two or three weeks; Miss Pignam, Cincinnati; Miss Rains, Grandview and then Florida; Miss Rooney expects to go east; and Mr. Zaenglein, Wapakoneta.

As yet Mr. Barricklow and Miss Teegardin are undecided.

JR. COMMITTEES EXPRESS THANKS

Chairmen of the Junior-Senior banquet committees were greatly aided by several business firms and individuals in the preparation of hall decorations and the dinner.

The junior class wishes to thank those persons through these columns.

Among them are W. T. Grant Co., Barnhill's Container Corporation, Kippy Kit Co., Rinehart's, Forest Cemetery, Mrs. Mary Beck, Mrs. Floyd Seymour, Mrs. W. Emerson Downing, and C. F. Zaenglein.

The class also expresses its appreciation to the mothers of juniors who prepared the dinner and to all who donated roses to the decoration committee.

'38 CLASS SONG

We, the class of '38"
Sing out our praises true
Goodbye to dear old Everts
Our high school days are through.

To our teachers and our classmates
We bid a sad adieu
But our hearts will fill with gladness
When e'er we think of you.

We, the class of '38"
Bid C. H. S. goodbye
Our hearts are heavy laden
But our hopes are soaring high.

Chorus
Our happiness reigned supreme
We hope that e'er inside your doors
Others will witness the same.

RUTH CLARK EDITS COLUMN'S LAST ISSUE

Ruth Clark edited the Red and Black for the week of May 31—June 3. Her assistant was Mary Hays.

The journalism class, publishers of the Red and Black, is under the supervision of Miss Margaret Mattinson. Class members are Medreth Bach, Ruth Clark, Betty Colville, Joanne Conyers, Mary Fickard, Lawrence Goeller, Harriet Harman, Mary Hays, Marjorie Leach, Mary Newmyer, Helen Sayre and Richard Weldon.

This thirty-sixth issue completes the year's volume.

CERTIFICATES OF HONOR AWARDED

Thursday morning, the teachers and pupils of Circleville high school assembled in the auditorium to pay recognition to those who won awards during the past year and who had not received them.

Emily Gunning, Robert Lane, Robert Fickard, Bonnie Ballou, and Lawrence Goeller won second, third, sixth, tenth, and fourteenth places respectively, in the general scholarship test for high school seniors, in Pickaway county. Emily also received an award of honorable mention in the state in this same test.

State certificates of honorable mention were given to Ruth Clark, English; Mary Hays, French; and Adabelle May, chemistry. Mary Adele Snider won fourth place in the state in Latin I.

The upper twenty-five percent of eighth grade award winners in the state test are as follows:

Ruth Bowsher, Joanne Conyers, Eugene Dewey, and Walter H. Nelson, were presented debate letters.

BAND AND TRACK LETTERS GIVEN

Wednesday, June 1, Coach Jack Landrum awarded track letters to the following boys. They are listed as to the most points each achieved for his team this year. The list includes Frank Woodward, Robert Owens, Kenny Smith, Marvin Jenkins, Harold Smith, Charles Zaenglein, Paul Walters, Robert Liston, James Davis, and Bill Stebelton. Tye Davis received a manager's letter.

Although the letters have not arrived the following list of pupils, as announced by C. F. Zaenglein, Thursday, will receive band letters. On the list are Robert Brehmer, Eugene Dewey, William Heffner, David Hilyard, Gale Hitchcock, Donald Jackson, Barbara Johnson, Russ Liston, William Lutz, Loring Norris, and Bill Thornton.

To be eligible to receive a letter, a student must have been a member of the band for at least two years and have completed his freshman year in high school.

SENIORS SEE PAPER MILL AND ENJOY TAR HOLLOW

Many members of the senior class have presented beaming but sunburned faces to the world this past week. The slightly parboiled condition is due to the sunny day on which the seniors took their annual outing.

Tuesday morning, the class drove to the Mead Paper Corporation in Chillicothe to watch the procedure used in making certain types of paper. The Mead Corporation makes paper for Life, Woman's Home Companion, Collier's, McCall's, Child's Life, and many smaller magazines. The company also specializes in paper to be used for bread wrappings and household purposes.

After the tour of the plant, the class traveled to Tar Hollow, where the students enjoyed a picnic lunch. During the afternoon many went swimming or hiking.

Miss Margaret Mattinson and Samuel Johnson accompanied the group.

Concert ... last of the season Sunday Evening Hour—
CBS, 8 p. m.

Katherine Meisle, contralto, will be featured as guest singer, and John Barbirolli will conduct the orchestra in this, the last broadcast of the season for this weekly symphonic program. W. J. Cameron, Ford spokesman, will speak briefly at intermission.

BARRYMORE, BARRIE

John Barrymore and his talented wife, Elaine Barrie, will be guests on the Eddie Cantor program Monday, June 6, at 6:30 p. m. over the CBS network.

Also on hand to aid in the festivities will be the regular Cantor troupe including Bert (Mad Russian) Gordon, Edgar Fairchild and his orchestra, Announcer Walter King, and the new comedy sensation of the air waves—Hattie Noel.

SWING AND INSPIRATION

Benny Goodman, "King of Swing," avers that even the best swing players have moments and night of stodginess when their ideas run to formal figures and cliches in which the improvisational flame that is the heat of "hot" jazz is lacking. That's why, he says, it is not reasonable to expect that all the performances in the space say, of two hours, will be equally powered by inventiveness and originality. Much depends on what swing players like to call "inspiration."

GENEROUS JAN

Maestro Jan Garber is famous on radio row for his unselfishness in helping members of his orchestra further their own ambitions. Russ Brown, Garber's romanticized baritone, is a good example, for the minute "Genial Jan" learned of Brown's operatic ambitions, he secured the services of Edward Novis, famous singing teacher, for his star singer.

Ohio Relief Program Defeated By Ballot

COLUMBUS, June 4—(UP)—The so-called "agreed" relief program was reduced to ruins today by action of the house of representatives in killing one major relief bill and badly crippling a stop-gap emergency plan.

It first overwhelmingly defeated the Almedinger bill which would have enabled cities to finance part of their relief costs by levying taxes now reserved to the State.

Then before adjournment for the week-end, it passed the Laderman-DeRigher bill appropriating $1,000,000 for loans to hard pressed urban centers, but in such a form that it is worthless unless corrected later.

The setbacks threw the relief situation into an even more chaotic state, with leaders admitting despair in their attempts to work out an acceptable plan. Some legislators left the state solely responsible for relief financing, but the question of how the money is to be raised remained unanswered. There is determined opposition to new taxes and only lukewarm support for extending existing taxes and borrowing in anticipation of their collection.

The loan bill taking $1,000,000 from the highway fund to be repaid from sales tax allocations, barely passed 71 to 38. But the opposition, led by Rep. Samuel A. Anderson, D., Licking a rural member of the committee which investigated cities' needs, refused to vote the emergency clause necessary to put such a measure into immediate effect.

Unless the emergency clause is added later—a possibility Speaker Frank R. Uible described as remote—the bill, if finally enacted in its present form, would not become effective for three months and hence would be of no value. The emergency clause got only 70 votes with 92 required.

The house refused even to debate the tax enabling legislation and swamped the Almedinger bill under an avalanche of adverse votes. The emergency clause received only 37 votes in this case and the bill itself mustered a like number with 70 needed for passage.

Rep. Anderson based his opposition to the loan bill on the plea that it would endanger highway funds despite the fact that the measure assures payment from future sales tax distributions. He attempted to win reconsideration of both the bill and the emergency clause, but city men, fearing his purpose was to destroy the bill entirely, beat him down on that point.

House leaders held some slight hope that the senate might pass the loan bill with the emergency clause attached and that the house would then concur to tide cities over until a relief program is finally enacted. The senate and the house will reconvene Monday. Through its president, Earl E. Hagerman, Dayton finance director, the League of Ohio Municipalities insisted that with defeat of local enabling legislation the relief problem must be solved as entirely a state responsibility.

"Without this enabling legislation," Hagerman said, "cities cannot participate in matching. Plans will now have to be made to provide funds on a state-wide basis."

MRS. MARTHA PLUMMER, 88, DIES AT ASHVILLE HOME

Mrs. Martha Angeline Plummer, 88, widow of Thomas Plummer, died at her home 205 East street, Ashville, at 3:20 a. m. Saturday of complications.

Mrs. Plummer was born Jan. 24, 1850 in Knox county, Ind., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson O'Haver. She is survived by four children, Ida, Maude and Samuel Plummer, at home, Mrs. Nellie Brooks, of Zaleski, O.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday in the Ashville United Brethren church with the Rev. O. W. Smith officiating. Burial will be in the South Bloomfield cemetery in charge of E. F. Schlegel.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Surpassing all their previous screen appearances in the language of music, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are seen and heard in an exquisite panorama of romance and song in "The Girl of the Golden West" which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

The lovely new songs heard in the picture include "Senorita," "Soldiers of Fortune," "The Wind in the Trees," "Shadows on the Moon," "Who Are We to Say," "From Sun-up to Sundown" and "Maraichie," which is the theme of a lavish Spanish festival.

In the story, Mary, owner of a dance hall, is loved by the gambling sheriff, Jack Rance. On her way to Monterey her stage coach is held up by the romantic masked bandit, Ramirez, with whom she later falls in love, believing him to be Lieutenant Dick Johnson. A former sweetheart betrays Ramirez. He escapes, wounded, in a gun fight with the sheriff but is captured later in Mary's cabin.

After being caught cheating in a game of cards with Rance for the bandit's life, Mary agrees to marry the sheriff if he will liberate Ramirez. On the day of the wedding Rance again finds the lovers together and the picture ends with a very ingenious climax.

Actress Sued

ACTRESS Frances Farmer, college girl who rose to fame in the movies and who now is appearing on the stage, is pictured entering New York court, where she opposes a suit for $75,000 filed by Sheppard Traube, actor's agent. Traube claims that amount is his commission under the terms of an alleged contract signed in 1935. Miss Farmer denies the charges.

CINCINNATI MAY TAKE NEW STEP IN 'BINGO' WAR

CINCINNATI, June 4—(UP)—City officials today hinted "drastic action" would be the next move in this city's "bingo war" after uniformed policemen were unsuccessful in their attempt to "pick-et" churches where the bingo games are held.

The "war" was declared formally June 1 when the city government ceased to issue any new permits for bingo games. City Manager C. O. Sherrill said that issuance of the permits was, in effect, "legalizing gambling."

But the ban did not stop three churches from holding their bingo contests as scheduled. Despite the presence of police outside, an estimated 5,000 persons walked inside one church to try their luck. Similar situations occurred at two other churches. Police did not interfere with operation of the games.

Sherrill remained silent on future moves. Police Chief Eugene T. Weatherly, however, hinted "drastic action" unless the bingo prohibition is obeyed. Mayor James G. Stewart received 13 letters in one day in protest against the announced ban.

463 FAMILIES IN COUNTY GET RELIEF IN MAY

Canter Discloses Amount Of Commodities Used To Aid Needy

Surplus commodities were issued during May to 463 families.

Wade Canter, commodity distributor, announced Saturday that during the month 48,544 pounds of food went to clients. This included 15,000 pounds of apples, 524 pounds of beans, 12,140 pounds of cabbage, 10,500 pounds of potatoes, 506 pounds of prunes, 874 pounds of rice and 9,000 pounds of oranges.

Ninety pairs of shoes were repaired. The relief administration issued 1,081 articles of clothing during the month. A total of 711 items of household furnishings, including pillow cases, rag rugs, sheets, towels and curtains, was issued.

DELEGATES FOR BIG WATERWAY URGE PROJECT

WASHINGTON, June 4—(UP)—The Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association today called a meeting of delegates from Ohio and 10 other states in Chicago June 17 to renew their campaign for adoption of the proposed Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway treaty by the United States and Canada.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull has submitted a draft of the treaty then to the Canadian government for study. Proponents contend that the new provisions have met the objections raised when the United States senate defeated a previous treaty in 1934.

The new treaty has greater flexibility and provides for creation of an international commission to advise the two governments on how to use the seaway to their best advantage, state department officials said.

The pact provided for a 27-foot channel, construction of hydroelectric plants and conservation of scenic beauties at Niagara Falls. The United States share of the cost is estimated at $225,000,000. The deep channel would enable sea-going vessels to reach Cleveland, Toledo and other Great Lakes ports.

DUNLAVY RUNS FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL POST

COLUMBUS, June 4—(UP)—Dennis F. Dunlavy, Ashtabula, member of the state utilities commission, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for attorney general in the August primaries.

Dunlavy, appointed to the utilities commission last March by Gov. Martin L. Davey, will oppose Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy who is seeking renomination.

His announcement of candidacy was generally interpreted as evidence of retaliation by the Davey administration against Duffy for his special grand jury investigation into charges that civil workers have been assessed five percent of their monthly salaries to finance the governor's campaign fund.

Previously administration sources circulated reports that Francis Durbin, Lima, a staunch administration supporter, might become a candidate, but Dunlavy, said he understood Durbin would not run. Dunlavy was a candidate for the nomination in 1936, but withdrew shortly after entering the race. He was assistant chief of the state securities in 1934.

passed. North, however, figured that if his partner had a strong no trump hand they were perhaps being cheated out of a part score, and as South surely held something in spades, a bid of two in that suit could not go wrong. South, however, misread the inference and went on to 2-No Trumps. A club was led by West and East's club K lost to the A. The spade K was South's next play, and when East won with the A he switched to a club to the Q of West, who returned another to the J. Thereafter South was helpless and was slaughtered, whereas 2-Spades might have been made.

Keep your spices, coffee and tea covered, as they lose their flavor with exposure to the air. Remember to keep the holes in the spice sifters also closed.

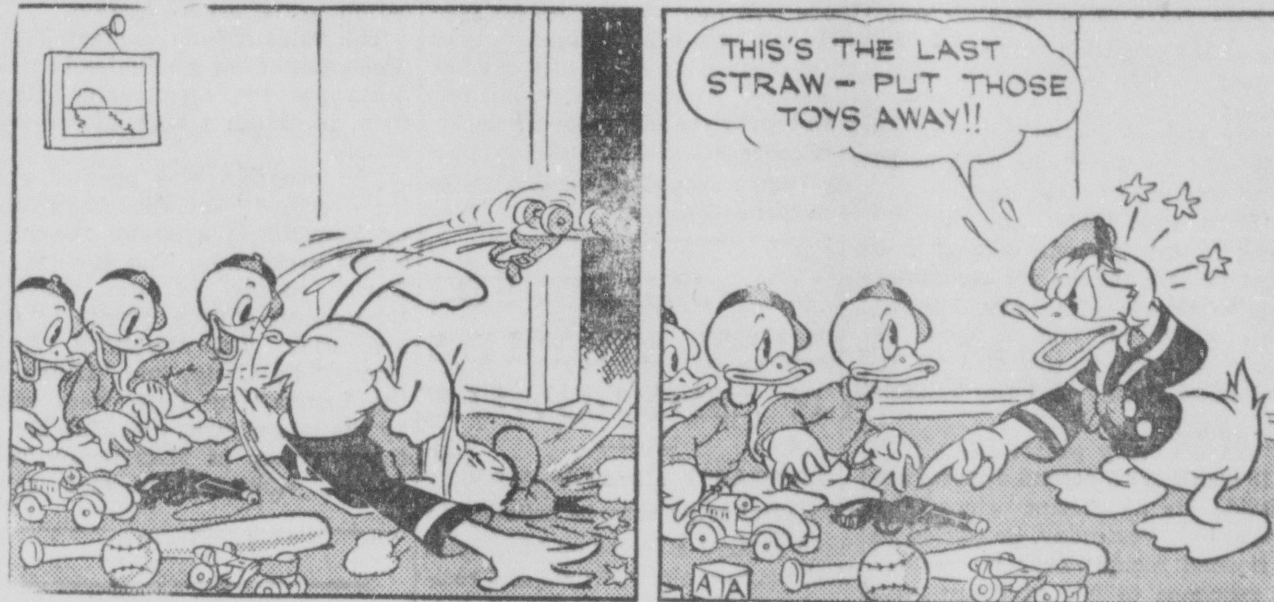

If you add raisins or other dried fruit to a cake or pudding after all the other ingredients are together, sprinkle a portion of the flour over the fruit.

MANY ATTEND DEMOCRATIC MEETING, HEAR ADDRESS BY GOVERNOR'S AIDE

ALL COUNTIANS ASKED TO JOIN NEW YOUTH UNIT

Next Session Of Pickaway Club Scheduled For Friday, June 17

Approximately 125 persons attended the business meeting of the newly formed League of Young Democrats of Pickaway County held Friday evening in Memorial hall. Twice that number enjoyed a dance that followed the business meeting, going to the event after the commencement exercises in Circleville high school.

Wray Bevins, executive secretary to Gov. Martin L. Davey, who recently spoke before the Rotary club in connection with the Northwest Territory celebration, was the speaker.

Mr. Bevins linked democracy with the opening of the territory, with the Ordinance of 1787 as the birth certificate of the nation. Jefferson, the father of democracy, he explained wrote the ordinance. He spoke of the many rights of citizens incorporated in the ordinance, including the rights of assembly, free speech and trial by jury. He told of the revision of the laws of Virginia by Jefferson and how through him the right to vote was received.

All Urged To Join

The speaker appealed to those present to join the organization and that every township, village and city in the county be represented. Purpose of the league is to study the fundamentals of government.

Accomplishments of President Roosevelt were reviewed by Mr. Bevins. These included bank deposit insurance, social security, aid for the blind and aged and dependent children, unemployment insurance and the workman's compensation.

Oscar Loyer, president of the State League of Young Democrats, scheduled to speak at the meeting, was detained by business and could not attend.

Ernest Weiler, temporary chairman of the county organization, presided at the meeting. Reports of the first meeting held in the state office building were given. The next meeting will be held Friday June 17. A permanent slate of officers will be elected at that time.

Many Introduced

Candidates and prominent Democrats of the county and employees of the various state departments were introduced. Harry Boney, collector of internal revenue, Columbus, attended the meeting.

The Casa Rey orchestra furnished music for dancing.

ARTHUR H. BOOKWALTER, 61, DIES OF COMPLICATIONS

Arthur H. Bookwalter, 61, died Saturday at 9:35 a. m. in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, complications causing death. Mr. Bookwalter was a resident of Hallsville.

Surviving are his widow, Jennie Armstrong Bookwalter; two sons, Merle J. Bookwalter, and Clyde, California; two stepsons, George Swepston, Laureville, and Kenneth, Hilliards; two half-brothers, Robert Bookwalter, New Albany, and Lee Bookwalter, Michigan.

The funeral will be Sunday at 2 p. m. at the home in Hilliards with the Rev. A. L. Slack officiating. Burial will be in Hallsville cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and Son.

TERWILLIGER CALLS HIS COMMITTEE TO MEETING

Members of all committees in connection with the Northwest Territory celebration in Circleville last May 9 are asked to attend an important meeting in the Albaugh chapel Monday at 8 p. m. The meeting has been called by Meeker Terwilliger, general chairman of the event. Purpose of the meeting is to submit a final report on the celebration.

More than $31,000,000 in gold has been returned to the U. S. treasury since the withdrawal of gold from general circulation.

My days are like a shadow that declineth; and I am withered like grass.—Psalm 102:11.

Miss Helen Stoker, Columbus, niece of Mrs. William Hegele, will sing a soprano solo at First Methodist church services Sunday morning. Miss Stoker, a pupil of Alexander Nakutin in Chicago, has chosen "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings" for her song. She begins an N. B. C. network broadcast in September.

Mrs. Olive A. Sorensen, Monroe township, was appointed administrator of the estate of her husband, Otto N. Sorensen, in Probate court Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Ramey of 325 E. Mound street announce the birth of a daughter at their home, Saturday.

Dr. B. B. Bales spoke at the meeting of the medical society Friday noon on his shell collecting expedition in Mexico last Winter. Ten members attended the meeting held at Hanley's tea room.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew U. Thomas, N. Court street, announce birth of a son in Berger hospital early Saturday.

A motion picture, sponsored by the major leagues, will be shown at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening at the Pickaway Country club. The meeting starts at 6:30 o'clock.

Special — Turkey Dinner at Hanley's Sunday.

The Royal Neighbors have cancelled the Memorial service planned for Sunday afternoon at Modern Woodman Hall.

Ethel O'Day, Ashville has reopened her Beauty Shop and solicits the patronage of her friends.

PETTIT'S TIRE SHOP COMPLETES ITS REMODELING

Expansion and complete remodeling program at Pettit's Tire Shop, S. Court street, has been completed.

A new structural glass front, black and cream in color, with aluminite trimming has been installed. In the expansion the store room formerly used by Sievert's confectionery has been added to the Pettit establishment. Center entrances were constructed and the rooms connected in the interior with an archway.

Interior of both rooms has been completely redecorated, new floor covering laid and modern light fixtures installed. The remodeling program required approximately a month.

Guy Pettit, owner, announced a complete line of washers, refrigerators, radios, sweepers and electrical appliances will be handled on the north side of his business place. The south room will be used for tires, batteries and a line of auto accessories.

A complete Westinghouse electrical kitchen was being installed in the appliance department Saturday.

establish low-rent dwellings for wage-earners; to carry electricity to rural homes and farms; and to contribute toward raising the income level of all farmers.

Technically, the bill is now back in the house, but only a formality remains before it goes to conference. Sen. Alva B. Adams, D. Colo., its floor manager, had the senate conferees appointed before last night's adjournment. In addition to himself, Sens. Kenneth McKellar, D. Tenn., James F. Byrnes, D. S. C., Frederick Hale, R. Me., and John G. Townsend, Jr., R. Del., were appointed.

Sine Die Expected

Barkeley, who held the senate in continuous session 13 hours yesterday to get it passed, said that if wages and hours, and recovery conferees "work diligently," nothing should prevent sine die adjournment of the 75th congress next week.

The recovery bill started out from the house appropriations committee aggregating $3,054,425,000. The house added $100,000,000 for the Rural Electrification administration. The senate appropriations committee raised the total to $3,247,025,000, chiefly by adding $212,000,000 for parity price payments to farmers. Before the senate finally settled on its still larger total it added a $300,000,000 housing authorization.

Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation who is leading G-men in the hunt for the kidnapers.

"Mr. Hoover visited us last night and said he naturally expects to solve this case," Cash said.

"Both Mrs. Cash and myself want to express our deepest and most sincere thanks for the hundreds of people who have dropped their work and jobs to come to our assistance in the attempt to find little Jimmy and the kidnapers," he said.

"We are very grateful." It was Cash's second appearance outside his apartment since the kidnaping. Yesterday, he rushed to a flooded rockpit near Homestead in response to one of many false reports the body had been found.

Wearily after the frantic week, he returned to his home, reviewing the situation with his wife, and resigned himself to the belief his son is dead.

Meanwhile, G-men took a new tack in their manhunt. They decided that the criminals had been motivated by a desire for vengeance on the father almost as much as by a desire for money. Hoover, directing a small army of G-men, and the father were closeted for 45 minutes and when they left, Hoover's assistant carried a bundle of clothing—understood to be the baby's clothing. It was reported that the father had gone over in detail his entire business career in this Redlands farming county 25 miles South of Miami and had named any enemies he had made.

Acting on Hoover's orders, his men established semi-permanent headquarters here, indicating that the federal determination to capture the criminals would not abate, no matter how long it takes. It was apparent that he had not a single clue to the whereabouts of the child's body (no one believed that there was any but the barest possibility of his being yet alive) and very slender clues, if any, to the kidnapers. Though the authorities maintained the customary secrecy, it was a general impression that the case might drag on for weeks—even months.

TWO JAILED FOR THEFT SERIES IN STOUTSVILLE

LANCASTER, June 4—Arrest of two Stoutsville men is believed to have cleared a series of burglaries that plagued store owners and residents of Clearcreek township during the last three months.

Those arrested by the sheriff's department are Harry Koehner, 22, and John I. Conrad, 46.

Included in the places alleged to have been entered by the men were the Stoutsville high school, three times; Elson Dozer hardware, three times; Simon Stout's filling station, twice, and once in Drake's bakery and store; Kenneth Greeno store, Hill's garage and Stout's hardware.

It is alleged also that the pair visited cottages at the Lancaster campgrounds in addition to entering several private residences.

SENIORS HEAR JUSTICE PLEAD FOR EDUCATION

the splendid English used in the words "shall" and "forever." Frank Fischer, superintendent, introduced the speaker.

Miss Harriet Harman, salutatorian, spoke on the topic "The Radio." She pointed out the great service rendered by the radio to police departments, in times of disaster and for the general entertainment of the public. She termed it an "injustice to the old ballads" to play them in the tempo of jazz. Parents of the graduates, and friends were welcomed by Miss Harman.

"Visual Education" was the topic of an address of Miss Gunning. "Students remember things better when they are seen rather than read," she said. "Many difficult problems and experiments can be explained more easily when seen." She explained that graduates of 25 years ago each gave speeches. Now only two speak. Miss Gunning predicted changing times will bring more visual education to the school system.

The valedictorian expressed appreciation of the graduates to residents for the opportunity given them to obtain a high school education.

The program was opened with the overture "Venetian Carnival," by Zamenik, played by the high school orchestra. The Rev. S. S. Davis, pastor of the Calvary Evangelical church, presented the invocation. Two selections, "Elfin Dance," by Greig, and "Listen to the Lambs," by Dett, were sung by the senior girls' glee club under the direction of Miss Grace Teegardin. Robert D. Fickardt sang a vocal solo "The House by the Side of the Road," by Foss.

Presentation of the class was made by Mr. Terhune. Diplomas were presented the graduates by Charles H. May, president of the board of education.

The class song, with words written by Harriet Beery and the music by Betty Weiler, was sung by the graduates. The Rev. Herman A. Sayre, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, gave the benediction.

Class officers were Edwin Bach, president; Robert Fickardt, vice president; Adamae Gardner, secretary, and Ruth Robinson, treasurer.

Graduates were:

CHILD'S BODY HUNTED

Possible Enemies Checked By Investigators

PRINCETON, Fla., June 4 — (UP)—James B. Cash, Sr., said today he has abandoned hope that his kidnapped son Jimmy still is alive. He said he feared it might take a week or 10 days to find the body in the tangled Everglades of Southern Florida.

Hollow-eyed and weary after a week spent in frantic efforts to locate the blue-eyed five-year old boy, Cash said he has resigned himself to the conviction that his son is dead. During the hectic days since the boy was kidnapped and the $10,000 ransom was paid, the father had clung to the fading hope that he would see his son alive once more.

"I have now given up all hope of finding my son alive," he said this morning.

The small town businessman whose son was kidnapped from his baby bed one week ago tonight, was convinced the body will be found. His views were in contrast to those of many searchers who participated in the most exhaustive manhunt ever undertaken in Florida.

If the body is in this area, they believed, it never will be found.

Strain Evidenced

Cash talked with newspapermen today for the first time since the abduction. He displayed obvious indications of the strain under which he has lived since the kidnapping.

Mrs. Cash, near prostration and under care of a physician since loss of her only child, appeared with her husband.

The father told of his conversation last night with J. Edgar

U. S. TO BOOST PURCHASES OF SURPLUS FOODS

WASHINGTON, June 4—(UP)—The administration planned today to increase its purchases of farm surpluses for distribution among the unemployed.

Plans by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation to expand purchases sharply were disclosed by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley, D., Ky.

Wallace directed the corporation to cooperate immediately with state and local relief organizations in determining the extent of unfilled need for food and clothing among people on relief.

Barkley attached an amendment to the recovery-relief bill, passed by the senate last night, authorizing the use of $125,000,000 for direct relief purposes. It would be provided out of the $1,425,000,000 W. P. A. appropriation and used principally for the purchase of commodities for needy unemployed.

The corporation has $17,000,000 for purchases this month and has estimated that it will have $75,000,000 available for the fiscal year beginning July 1. This money is set aside from 36 percent of import duties for removal of farm surpluses.

During the first 11 months of this fiscal year $28,000,000 was spent for farm surpluses, officials said. They expect to spend the full $17,000,000 in June.

Emily Gunning and David Jackson Receive Kiwanis Club Keys; Lawrence Goeller Honored by Chamber of Commerce

By Franklin Kibler

Closing chapters in the high school careers of 74 young men and women were added Friday evening in the eightieth annual commencement in Circleville high school auditorium.

For the first time in the school's history, graduates wore dark blue caps and gowns, a distinctive feature of the impressive exercises. Graduates were seated on the stage in a banked formation. Baskets of flowers decorated the stage.

Scholarship keys of the Circleville Kiwanis club were awarded to Miss Emily Gunning and David L. Jackson. The keys are given to the outstanding girl and boy of the class decided on the basis of scholastic standings and extra-curricular activities. Miss Gunning, class valedictorian, is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Gunning, E. Main street. Mr. Jackson is the son of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Jackson, N. Scioto street.

Bouquet to Goeller
The Chamber of Commerce bouquet, awarded monthly to a citizen who has performed an outstanding service to the community, was presented to Lawrence E. Goeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Goeller, Beverly road. Selection of the graduate to receive the bouquet was made by the faculty group. Young Goeller's work on the annual won him the honor. Presentation of the awards was made by Robert H. Terhune, principal.

Carl V. Weygandt, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme court, urged graduates to obtain further education and make proper use of that education when it is acquired in his address on the topic "Education's Challenge."

"Even though times are difficult the opportunity is present for any boy or girl who desires further education, and is willing to work to obtain that education," the speaker said. "Acquire as much further education as it is possible for you to obtain."

A genuine sacrifice has been made that you young folk might obtain your first major objective. How residents enjoy complaining about taxes. Their least complaint is about the money for schools. This experiment in education is costing us something, but if these graduates are finer young men and women the investors may have been more than satisfied."

Music in School Praised
The speaker praised the music presented during the program and the important part it plays in the school. "Those pupils may lay away their musical instruments but they will never lay away their capacity to appreciate music," he said.

In speaking of the opportunities given for further education Judge Weygandt cited the wisdom of the designers of the Ordinance of 1787 when they incorporated in it the provision "Religion, morality, and knowledge, being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged." He pointed out

Robert Balthaser and Everett Beers, members of the active Walnut township Future Farmers of America chapter, were honored Friday at the F. F. A. convention in Columbus when they were designated as "state farmers", the highest award available for members of the organization.

Eighty-five other Ohio F. F. A. members were honored with the award.

Donald Bernard, 18, who lives on a Clinton county farm and raises championship Southdown sheep, is the new president of Ohio's Future Farmers.

He was elected to succeed Donald Capper of Van Wert. Robert Rarey, Hilliards, is the new vice president; Lawrence Sarbough, Muskingum county, secretary; Harold Crone, Ashland, treasurer, and Bert Showman, Liberty Center, reporter.

Robert Thomas, Radnor; Donald Harris, Green Springs, and Roger Lawrence, North Fairfield, were chosen to the executive committee.

Four Win Camping Trip
The Danforth award, for all-around work in high school, went to Earl Rindfuss, Bucyrus; Loren Miller, Marion county; Larry Zehner, Dola, and Elton Berry, Medina. They will be given a two-week expenses paid camping trip.

Awards for news writing went to Lawrence Duvall, Ridge township, Van Wert county; John Kamsforth, Canal Winchester, and Jesse Curtis, Kenton.

The dairy judging team of Bernell Hansel, James Ufferman and Leonard Hough of Delaware Willis high school won first place in state competition and will win trips to the national Future Farmers congress in Kansas City next Fall. The team is coached by E. R. Smith.

Sharon high school, Medina county, was second and Houston high, Shelby county, third.

Paul Cline, Suffield, won individual judging honors. Hansel was second and Gordon Rogers, Ridge township, Van Wert county, was third.

COURT OF HONOR TO BE HELD IN KINGSTON HALL

Quarterly Court of Honor ceremonial for recognizing the achievements of Boy Scouts of the Pickaway district will be held in Kingston, Wednesday, June 22. Ed Ebert is chairman of the committee on Scout advancement.

This will be the first time the court has been held in Kingston. It will be conducted in the Presbyterian church, home of Troop No. 5 of which L. E. Hill is scoutmaster.

The district flag will be presented to the troop responsible for the largest delegation of parents present. It had previously been awarded to the troop having the largest number of advancements.

Mr. Ebert will be in charge of the program.

JAPAN IGNORES RAID PROTESTS

Airplanes Drop More Bombs On Canton; 1,000 More Reported Dead

HONG KONG, June 4—(UP)—Unconfirmed estimates put the dead and wounded at 1,000 in a Japanese air raid on Canton today. It was asserted that the Japanese planes bombed extensively in all parts of the city.

SHANGHAI, June 4 — (UP)—Despite United States and British government protests against attacks on civilian populations, Japanese airplanes bombed Canton again today and first reports said that casualties were expected to rank with those of last week's terrible raids.

Thirty planes flew over the city, a United Press Canton dispatch said, and dropped about 75 bombs in congested areas. Some bombs struck in the neighborhood of government buildings and the power station.

Japanese predicted a battle of great magnitude between the Chinese army massed in the Kaifeng area of the East-West Lungai (Continued on Page Eight)

YOUTH WHO HIT COUNTY WOMAN LODGED IN JAIL

Daniel Glenn, 17, was placed in the county jail for juvenile court Friday night by the sheriff's department.

Glenn, a ward of juvenile court, was sought by officers after he struck Mrs. William Creager of near Nashville on the head with a piece of garden hose. The youth had resided at the Creager home. He was formerly in the Children's home. Glenn ran away from the Creager home after the incident. Mrs. Creager was dazed but not seriously injured.

The youth returned to the Creager home Friday night and officers were called. He was brought to Circleville by Deputy Sheriff's Miller Fassel and Earl Weaver.

BIG BILL LEE PITCHES CUBS NEARER LEAD WITH THIRD STRAIGHT SHUTOUT

CHICAGO HURLER BEATS COMPLEX TO PACE MATES

Indians Rally Late To Win From Philadelphia Crew; Cincinnati Loses

NEW YORK, June 4—(UP)—The transformation of Big Bill Lee of the Chicago Cubs from one of those "hold your breath" hurlers into baseball's foremost pitcher as of today forms the background for the most intriguing study in psychology to be found on the sports pages.

Lee, an easy-going, soft-spoken southerner from Plaquemine, La., was hanging on the ragged edge the morning of May 19. Manager Charlie Grimm didn't know what to do with him. Dizzy Dean was a problem but Grimm knew what was the matter with him. He had a sore arm. But Lee wasn't sick or ailing. He had plenty of stuff but he just couldn't win. He was a case for the psychiatrists.

Five times he had started and never been able to finish. Once he had a 12-run lead and had to have a relief in the ninth. It looked like he was forever doomed to be a pitcher who couldn't conquer himself. Then the players began to say that Lee was a quitter—that he didn't have any moxie.

That was what they were saying on the morning of May 19. But they aren't saying it any more. Lee went out that day and beat the Giants, 1-0, in 10 innings. But that was a victory for Lee over Lee, not over the Giants. When he walked off the mound his teammates shook hands with him and patted his shoulder. Lee believed in himself once more.

Including that game he has won five straight games, four of them by shutouts. For his last 46 innings he has the phenomenal record of having allowed only one run. He pitched his third straight shutout yesterday to beat the Boston Bees, 4-0, and the Cubs moved within a game and a half of the National League lead.

The Giants lost their fourth straight, bowing to Pittsburgh, 6-5. The Pirates made all six runs in the second to drive Harry Gumbert off the mound.

After spotting Cincinnati four runs in the first inning Brooklyn came from behind to beat the Reds, 5-4. Van Muno hurled two-hit ball after the first inning until he was relieved for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. Dolf Camilli's single in the ninth drove in the winning run.

Catcher Mickey Owen's single in the 11th drove in the winning run which gave the St. Louis Cardinals and 8-7 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies.

American Leaders Win

The three American league leaders all won their games. Cleveland put on a six-run rally in the eighth to overcome the Athletics, 10-5, and give Johnny Allen his seventh victory. Triples by Averill and Trosky and doubles by Keltner and Campbell featured the big rally.

Scoring four runs in the fourth the Yankees knocked off the Tigers, 5-1, as Red Ruffing won his sixth straight game. Joe Dimaggio hit homer No. 7. Wes Werrell held the White Sox to six hits in pitching Washington to a 5-1 victory over Chicago. It was Ferrell's eighth victory. Al Simmons hit a homer with a mate on base. The Red Sox and Browns were rained out.

YESTERDAY'S HERO—Big Bill Lee, Chicago Cubs' righthander, who won his fifth straight game, and pitched his fourth shutout in 16 days.

How Can Jake Powell Be Protected? Is This Another Job for the Umpires? What Casey Stengel Would Do About It

Joe McCarthy demands protection from the umpires for Jake Powell. Joe says all the pitchers around the league have been dusting off Mister Powell, and it's high time steps were taken to stop it.

Well, what are the umpires supposed to do? Suppose Johnny Allen is pitching, and his dear friend Bill McGowan is wearing the pad. When Powell comes to bat, should Mr. McGowan take Mr. Powell out to the mound and, after proper introductions all around, ask Mr. Allen please not to pitch inside to Mr. Powell because he doesn't like 'em there? "I say, old boy, it isn't cricket, you know!"

You can hear Mr. McGowan cajoling Mr. Allen. "You will be careful now, won't you, John?" And it is not hard to imagine Mr. Allen's polite response, something like:

SOFTBALL LOOP RESUMES PLAY NEXT MONDAY

Fenton Cleaners And Purina Feeds Play; Buskirk Decision Reached

Recreation ball teams will resume competition Monday evening after a week filled with excellent contests and a renewed interest in the league. Monday's game puts the Fenton Cleaners against Purina Feeds; Tuesday finds Circleville Oils meeting Cain's food market of South Bloomfield; Wednesday's joust is between the Bronzeville Jollies and Glitt's food market; Thursday pits Blue Ribbon dairy against Eshelman Feeds, and Friday lists Purina Feeds against Cain's market.

League managers, meeting in The Daily Herald office Friday evening, voted that Leonard Buskirk, one of the city's speediest hurriers, belongs to the Purina Feeds, the team with whom he signed to play, and not the Blue Ribbon dairy whom he played the first game. At the suggestion of Merle Davis, acting manager for the dairy crew, the game played by the Blue Ribbons against the Bronzeville Jollies will be eliminated from the records because Buskirk played in it. The contest was set down for July 12.

All teams must submit their final player lists to the league president or the umpire-in-chief before they take the field for their games next week. The league rule reads that all player lists must be final before the second game is played. After that all trades, releases or addition of players by any method is subject to approval of all league managers.

INDIANS SMACK APPLE TO WIN AGAIN, 10 TO 5

WASHINGTON, June 4—(UP)—The Cleveland Indians may not hold on to their American league lead, but diamond experts agreed today that no club will overpower the proteges of Oscar Vitt.

As the Tribe came here to open a three game series with the surprising Washington Senators, they had given a convincing demonstration of long distance hitting.

Cleveland won the final game of the series from the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday by a 10 to 5 count and it was sheer power which netted the triumph.

Johnny Allen, on the mound for the Indians, pitched only ordinary ball as he gave up 11 hits, but his mates unleashed a 15 hit attack off three Philadelphia hurlers.

Included in the Cleveland barrage of base hits were two doubles, two triples and a home run. Every man in the Indians lineup, except Lyn Lary, secured at least one hit. The leader of the attack was Hal Trosky, with three safeties.

Philadelphia was off to an early lead when it scored once in the third, again in the fourth and then added three in the fifth.

The Indians launched their slugging spree in the sixth with three runs, clinched the game with a six run spurge in the eighth and added another counter in the ninth on a home run by Ken Keltner, his ninth of the campaign.

The victory was Allen's seventh straight. The only decision he has dropped was in his initial start of the season.

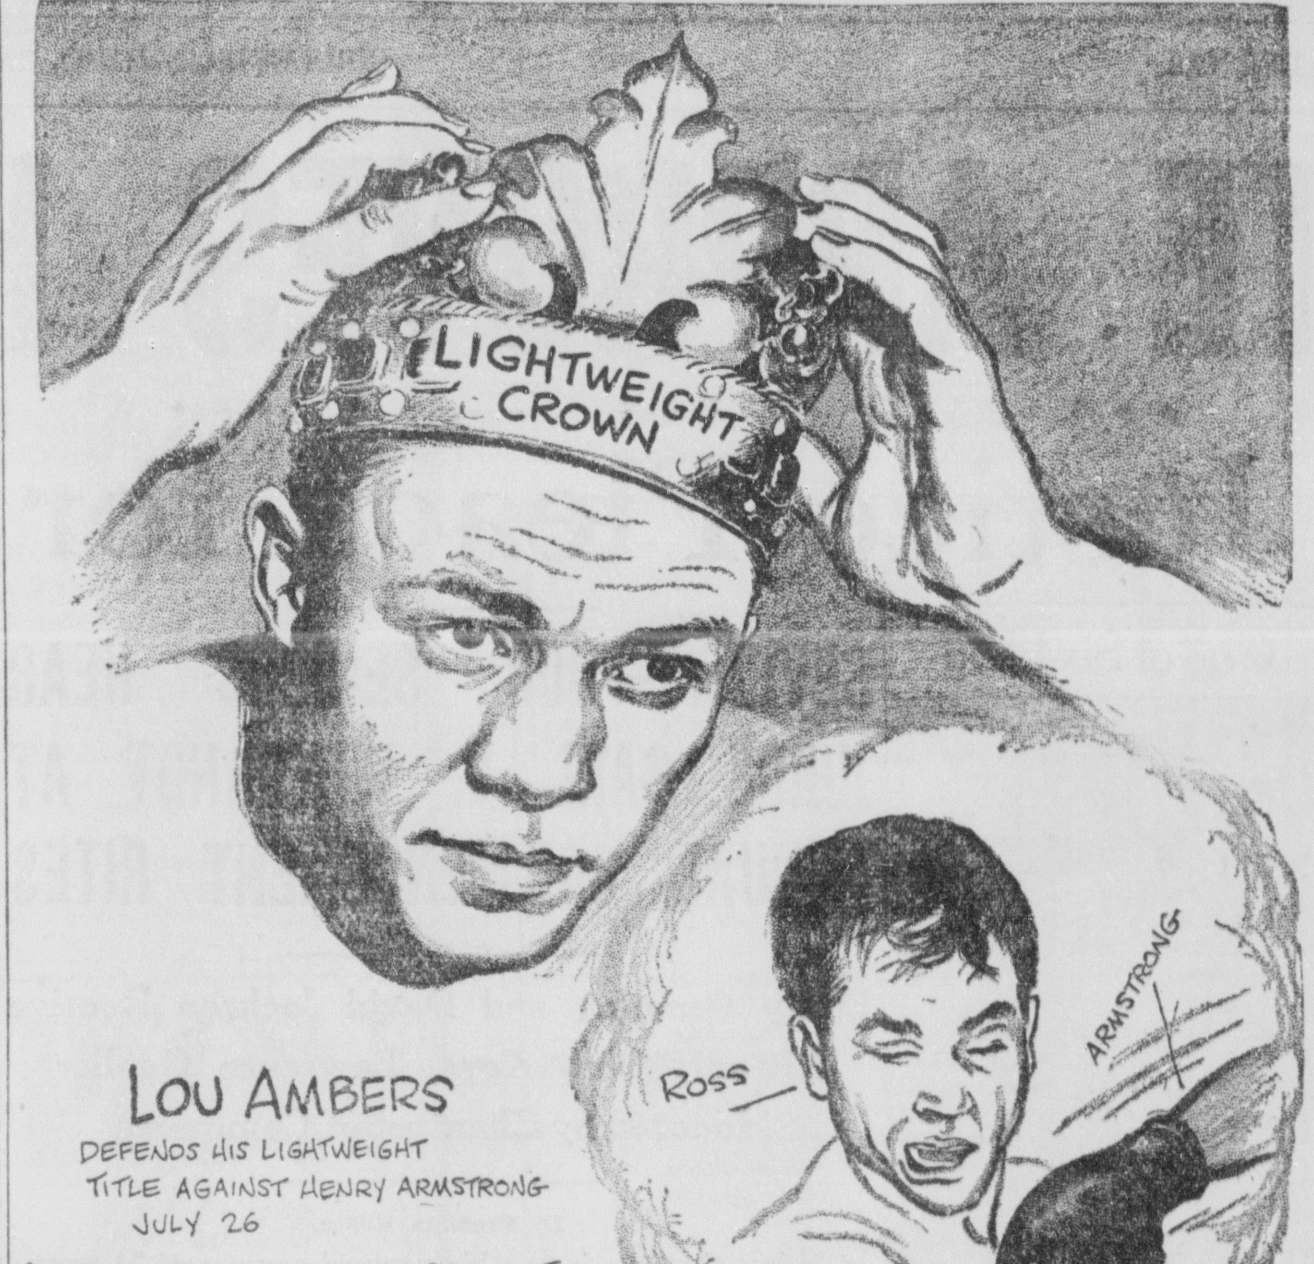

Bob Feller was slated to pitch the first game of the series here for the Indians. Kendall Chase, rookie southpaw, was to oppose him.

WANER SCORES 2,500 BINGLES IN OLD LEAGUE

PITTSBURGH, June 4—(UP)—When Outfielder Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates smashed out three hits against the New York Giants yesterday, he accomplished what only 29 other batters had accomplished in the history of baseball—hit safely for the 2,500th time.

In addition, he became the only active National league player to have that total. The most recent National league players to reach the 2,500-mark were Frankie Frisch and Rogers Hornsby, but neither of them is now active.

Waner started the season with a total of 2,473 hits in 1,792 games in 12 years with the Pirates.

ONE HALF GAME SEPARATES TWO MINOR SQUADS

COLUMBUS, June 4—(UP)—The bitter battle between Kansas City and Indianapolis for the American Association lead had been intensified today.

Only one-half game separates the two leaders and Indianapolis can take over first place today if it defeats the Blues in the final game of their short series.

John Niggeling, last season a member of the Kansas City pitching staff, gave Indianapolis a 1 to 0 victory over his old mates last night as he came through with one of the finest hurling performances of the year.

Niggeling did not grant a hit for six innings and gave the Blues only two during the entire game.

Jack LaRocca and Marvin Breuer, who shared the hurling duties for the Blues, permitted only two hits likewise, but one of these was a freak double by Bob Fausett that drove in the only run of the contest. LaRocca and Breuer walked nine men, while Niggeling gave up only three passes.

Lloyd Brown gave the fast advancing St. Paul club another triumph when he blanked Toledo, as the Mudhens were beaten 3 to 0. Brown permitted only four hits.

Milwaukee had an easy time as it trounced Louisville 16 to 3 and Columbus turned back Minneapolis 6 to 3.

LOUIS BOUDREAU SIGNS
CHAMPAIGN, Ill., June 4—(UP)—Louis Boudreau, star athlete and third baseman for the University of Illinois, will report this week to a Class AA, A, or Class B club to be designated by the Cleveland Indians. He signed a contract with the Indians yesterday.

SWAP BETWEEN GIANTS AND PITTSBURGH FAILS

PITTSBURGH, June 4—(UP)—The proposed player swap between the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Giants had fallen through today.

Managers Pie Traynor of the Pirates and Bill Terry of the Giants failed to reach an agreement on the trade before the Giants left town last night.

The proposed trade would have given the Giants Second Baseman Pep Young in exchange for Outfielder Wally Berger and Utility Man Lou Chiozza, a move which probably would have strengthened both clubs.

It was understood that Traynor balked at parting with Young. The trading deadline is June 15, however, and it was believed possible the two clubs might get together before that time.

Hip, Knee Movement Imperative to Golfer

BY WILLIAM BOWMAN Pickaway Club Professional

The hips and the knees play a very important part in the golf shot to the extent that both must function perfectly in order to cooperate with the other parts of the body. We hear so much about the pivot, and I must confess it is the most misunderstood movement to the average golfer today. Most golfers think it is the turning of the hips that make up the pivot. The pivot we know is not turning of the hips, but a shifting of the hips from left to right on the back swing, and from right to left on the forward swing. Of course they are bound to turn a little but not enough to make a difference.

The knees must bend freely, that is, one at a time, the left knee bends on the back swing, and the right on the forward swing. If your knees don't bend freely in making a golf swing, you are cheating yourself out of a lot of freedom in movement throughout the shot. On the back swing the left knee bends at the knee freely, forward and towards the right, letting the left heel slightly off the turf, but the left foot does not turn. On the forward stroke the left knee gradually goes back in place, and the right bends until the heel is pointing upward at the finish of the stroke. We see so many golfers who try to pivot, when as a matter of fact neither knee bends at the joint at all.

So we keep our head in one spot, our left arm straight, our right in back, our hips shift, our knees bend (one at a time) we hit the ball free from restraint, finish in a perfect balance, every part of the body has coordinated with the other, and the club head is allowed to do its work properly and efficiently, and unless you get these movements of coordination and rhythm and timing, you are missing nearly all the fun and thrills that go to make up a good golf game. Of course it takes work and determination, but it is a good deal easier when you are sitting in the dirt at home plate.

Stengel's System

Can the Yankees be softening up? This is still baseball, isn't it? I don't think you will hear Casey Stengel plead for protection for his Bees, for Casey clings to the ancient idea that a man ought to be able to take care of himself, whether it's on a ball diamond, or in a saloon. The pitchers used to let one go at Stengel's conk once in a while, but he made his own arrangements toward curbing the practice without appealing to the president of the league. For reference, consult the case of Stengel vs. Phil Weiner. The scene was under the stands in Philly. Whenever a hitter comes in to Casey and reports he thinks the pitcher has been trying to dust him off, Casey merely replies: "When I was playing we didn't think he was trying to flatten us out, we knew it. I used to spend an average of three weeks per season sitting in the dirt at home plate."

ANNUAL LUTHERAN VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY AT 8:30

ALL CHILDREN OF COMMUNITY ARE ELIGIBLE

Stories, Dramatics, Songs, Handwork, Other Features Offered

Twelfth annual vacation Bible school of Trinity Lutheran church will open Monday, June 6, at 8:30 a. m. in the parish house.

The Bible school, financed by the Brotherhood and under the direction of the Rev. G. L. Troutman, will be held five days a week for three weeks. Sessions last two hours.

All children of the community between the ages of five and 16 are eligible to attend the school. It is free. Purpose of the school is to give Christian training.

Teachers Listed
Teachers for the primary department include Miss Annabelle Barch, superintendent; Miss Martha Reid, Miss Anna Fellmeth and Miss Martha Goeller. Those for the junior department are Miss Betty Fischer, Miss Elsie Brehmer and the Rev. Mr. Troutman.

The primary course will include Bible stories, handwork, acting songs, dramatics, Bible study with screen slides and a novelty period consisting of picture puzzles, memory work, missionary stories and supervised recreation.

Activities of the junior course include Bible stories, object lessons, construction work, dramatics, music, novelty period and supervised recreation.

Picnic on June 24
A picnic will be held for all who attend the school on Friday, June 24. Public presentation of certificates will be made on June 26 at the morning service. Those eligible for this reward will be all who were not absent more than one day and have completed the course.
The Bible school will have charge of both services on Sunday, June 26. A play, "Life of David," will be presented by members of the junior department.

MUSICAL NUMBER TO BE REPEATED BY QUARTET

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, pastor of the First Presbyterian church will preach Sunday on the theme "Choice of Endurance."

The Rev. Mr. Kelsey explained that we endure through our choices. "Correct choices will lead to endurance," he said.

By request the mixed quartet will sing the anthem "Remember Now Thy Creator," by Adams. It was presented by the quartet during the baccalaureate service last Sunday evening. The quartet is comprised of Mrs. Clark Will, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Yates and Mack Parrett, Jr.

Miss Abbe Mills Clarke, organist, will play "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," by Rachmaninoff; "Romance," by Gluck, and "Recession," by Ralph Klinger.

Flower prints in elastic satin are favored for bathing suits.

Personal Devotion to Christ

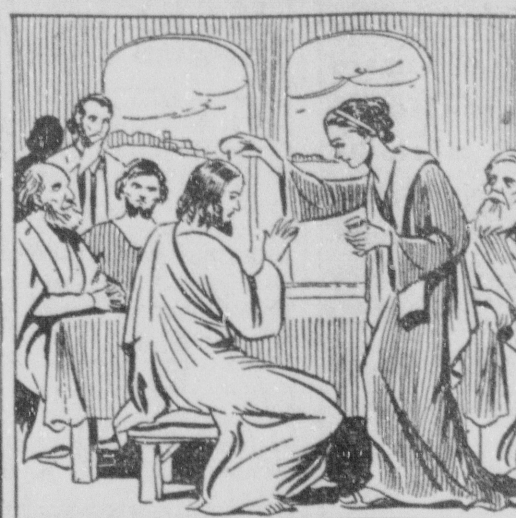

A few months before Jesus' death he was a guest at the home of Mary and Martha, and Mary sat at his feet and listened to him, learning much of his coming death at the hands of his enemies.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Mark 14:3-11; 27-31

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell
And Alfred J. Buescher

The last week of Jesus' life he was again in Bethany, and Mary anointed Jesus' head with precious ointment. Judas criticized her act as wasteful. But Jesus commended Mary for anointing him beforehand for burial.

After criticizing Mary's act of devotion Judas went out and bargained with Jesus' enemies for thirty pieces of silver as his price for help in delivering Jesus to them without violence.

After Judas left the group around the supper table Jesus warned the other disciples that all of them would forsake him that night and that Peter would even deny that he knew Jesus.

Twenty-seven members of Scout Troop No. 5 presented the opening services at the Hallsville United Brethren church at 10 a. m. on Decoration Day. Following this all went to the grave of Kendall Mullins, a former assistant Scout leader, where memorial services were held as follows: Salute and pledge of allegiance to the flag, placing of a wreath by Morton Hicks, poem "Lest We Forget" by Scout Master Loring E. Hill, Scout Memorial flag placed by Red Jester, address by Rev. J. O. Hopper of Hallsville U. B. church, closing with the benediction, Taps by Francis Hinton.

All repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dresbach, the parents of Scouts Harold and Earl Jr., where a 12:30 luncheon was enjoyed. Games were played during the p. m., followed by supper at 5:30 o'clock after which all motored to Gold Cliff Chateau for roller skating.

Regular Scout meeting will be held on Thursday evening at 8:00 o'clock. In spite of the stormy evening Saturday the Scouts realized sixteen dollars from the Strawberry Social. A cupboard for the Drum Corps instruments was installed in Scout Room last week.

THE EVEREST CLIMBERS

THEY are climbing Mount Everest again. The 1938 British Mount Everest Expedition has set up its base camp 12 miles below that unconquered peak and is preparing for a new assault.

The immediate tasks are the arrangement of supplies, the acclimating of the expedition, and a medical check-up. Next a chain of higher camps will be prepared. Then the strategy of approach must be mapped. H. W. Tilman, leader of the expedition, writes modestly and poetically:

"For this year there shall be no predictions. It is safe to foretell that one point of constant attraction at the base camp, these early days, will be the big mounted telescope trained upon the sphinxlike silhouette of Everest itself, its topmost silvery pyramid, its ridges and snowfields, ledges upon its relentless walls already reached by flagging human feet in earlier assaults, and the cloud plumes that rush tauntingly across its upper acclivities."

That telescope may bring the peak nearer to their vision, not to their weary bodies.

Everest, he reminds his readers, is 29,002 feet high. To those whose thoughts are concentrated on scaling the peak to the last inch, that "odd couple of feet" seems a special challenge. "Could it—the top of the pinnacle—be detached and brought home?" Mr. Tilman asks. This Summer may finish this tale of adventure—or merely another chapter.

COMPLAINERS

A SWISS gentleman who visited this country recently writes to an American friend expressing his wonder at the worried and discontented spirit here. We complain that business is very bad, and we seem much distressed by it. Yet we ride to work in fine cars, are well dressed, live in excellent houses, and regard as necessities the telephones, radios and other modern things which are luxuries in other lands.

They do not have our standard of living in Switzerland, or in other European countries, he says, but they have what he thinks is better—a feeling of contentment with simple and modest blessings, which they would not exchange for our wealth and the discontent that goes with it.

This man, perhaps, like most foreign visitors, misjudges the situation somewhat. The wealth and luxury he has seen are not really typical. He probably did not see or talk with representative millions of unemployed living in want, or on public relief or W. P. A. jobs. But his misconception is natural.

We seem to have this strange situation—that the great numbers of people with-

BRASS RING TO CARDENAS

WASHINGTON — The days of Lazaro Cardenas as President of Mexico probably are numbered. But when he goes he will leave behind a New Deal which will make the "Roosevelt Revolution" look pale and innocuous in comparison.

For Cardenas has engineered what is perhaps the most rapid bloodless revolution in history. He has taken 24,000,000 acres of land from large owners and divided it up among landless peons. He has nationalized 7,000 miles of railroad, seized the petroleum industry and begun a program of free public education for children and adults alike.

Frequently Cardenas has remarked to his intimates: "I do not know who is going to succeed me, so I must get this done while I am in office."

So, almost like his neighbor in the White House, Cardenas has pushed on with his program. He has divided land among the peons so rapidly that they lack tools, seed, or money to work it. He has taken over the oil industry so suddenly that almost every foreign-owned well has stopped pumping. He has built irrigation dams and public works projects with money that he does not have.

He has built up a tremendous popular following. He will go down in history as Mexico's most idealistic president. But today his administration is foundering on the rocks of economic distress, and it will be a miracle if he continues through his term of office.

Cause of his foundering is exactly the same as that which is rocking the Roosevelt New Deal: refusal of business to cooperate; too large a dose of reform in one swallow; plus—in the case of Cardenas—the aloofness of the man in Washington who is suffering from similar problems.

ONCE A JAIL KEEPER

Cardenas was a lone jail-keeper when the Madero revolution broke, and opening the gates of the prison, he and his one prisoner joined the forces of the revolution. The now President of Mexico has been revolting ever since.

In Cardenas' veins flows the blood of the Spanish conquistadores and also the blood of the Aztec Indians. Like so many men who have risen to rule Mexico, he was born in a poor home and made his way to power through the army.

But unlike most of Mexico's dictators, he has not lost the human touch. He has scorned expensive limousines and the corps of armed guards usually associated with Mexican presidents. As Governor of the State of Michoacan he returned half his salary to the treasury from 1928 to 1932. He has traveled about the country notebook in hand, jotting down the needs of this community and that—a school here, water supply there, and so on.

out jobs, or living on the edge of want, and in real misery and fear, are not the ones who do the complaining. It is those who, with all their hard luck, still have resources and even luxuries, who complain the loudest.

First Aid Hints For Every Week in Year

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE NEWSPAPERS carried good publicity accounts for First Aid Week which was May 15 to 21, but there is no reason why every week should not be First Aid Week. At least a reminder is due more often than once a year.

First aid in the home begins with prevention. Attention to the prevention of home accidents is more important than any other because they are more numerous; they are more frequent than automobile accidents, or industrial accidents, or outdoor accidents (including drownings) of all kinds. The amazing figure of 5,658,500 accidents is given as the annual total of home accidents in the United States in 1936.

Half of all home accidents are caused by falls. Next most frequent are burns. Then follow cuts, wounds, asphyxiation, electrocution and carbon monoxide inhalation. As to prevention: (1) Furniture out of place in a dark bedroom, (2) shoes in the middle of the floor and (3) buckets or brooms left on the kitchen steps—can all easily be avoided. But no matter how often we may warn people those examples of carelessness still occur.

Other good rules are: Never take medicine from a cabinet in the dark.

More Rules

Never leave pots containing hot foods on the stove where small children can upset them. (Dreadful scars on the face and chest are usually the consequence of neglecting this rule.)

Never touch electric appliances while taking a bath.

Never leave anything boiling on

CHAPTER 24

BREAKFAST next morning included an hour of planning, in which Ellen reiterated her desire to be settled in her own new home. "If you're in such a hurry to get on your ranch, I can arrange it," Bill told her. "You can move out today."

"But there's no house!"
"No. And won't be for a while yet. But did you ever live in a tent?"

Ellen Dale had been born in Brooklyn, reared figuratively in a subway, worked in a crowded five-and-ten-cent store, then in Hollywood. Tents were just things some of the movie producers used occasionally for outdoor scenes.

"I could learn," said Ellen, gamely.

"Will they?"
"Yes. And coyotes. Ever hear a coyote? Ever see one?"

"No, Bill. Are they dangerous?"
"No. But they sound like ban-shes, or worse. I have had Mexican families moved out. They can squat in lean-tos or anything. You can have a big wall tent beside your stream, and the Mexican lady can be chaperon."

"I think it would be fun! I won't be scared much."

"I'll give you a gun, two guns. You can practice outdoor craft while we build the ranch home. But I'm more worried about your getting lonely more than anything else."

"Will you be there, part of the time?"
"All of the time. Until you fire me. I expect to supervise the construction work. And get the ranch going as agreed."

"I'll go out today," Ellen said. Some of her personal things had already been shipped from her Hollywood apartment, and Ellen spent an hour this morning adding to them. She bought several books, among other things. And magazines, clothing, shoes, a portable phonograph, a battery radio, a typewriter, stationery. Bill met her at 10 o'clock and bought a saddle that "fitted" her well; also pistols, shot gun, rifle, and abundant ammunition. He bought a small truck, too, saying it would be constantly needed at the ranch, and would come in handy at the start.

"I've spotted four horses," he told her. "They'll come out this afternoon. I'll load the tent and all the duffel on the truck now, and you can start out with it."

"Me?" Ellen looked her inquiry too.

"Sure, you. If you're going to be a rancher, he a rancher. Never heard of a ranch woman who couldn't drive a truck. It's a light-weight one. Listen, sis, if you hang around me long—I mean, if you let me hang around long as foreman of the DD—I'll have you learning to milk cows!"

"Bill!"
"Sure! Glory, you don't think ranching is like living at the Biltmore?"

He grinned broadly, and she stuck out her tongue saucily at him.

"All right, smarty! I will drive it, then! And milk the cows, too. See if I don't!"

He had, as a matter of fact, been joking about most of it. But after

"He's a $10 a week, Pablo," he told the boy. "Handy man, you. Whatever Miss Dale can think up for you to do, see?"

The boy was made supremely happy. He came, in time, to worship Bill Baron; he became Ellen's abject slave.

He caught the horse she picked out when the first of the ranchers arrived. It was a peppery pony, white with brown marks splashed over his hide, and with a curly white silken mane and tail. A "painted horse," Bill told her.

"What'll you name him?" he asked her.

She considered it briefly, admiring the animal.

"What is the Spanish word for 'painted'?" she asked.

"That's his name, then. Pintado. You like it, Pablo?"

The boy nodded, smiling; Bill voiced his approval, too.

Ellen learned to put on a bridle and saddle. Presently she was mounted and galloping around the flat area there.

"Stop 'posting', cowgirl!" Bill yelled. "That's done only by the elite, which same you ain't one of no more."

"You needn't talk like a hick!" she called back. "The stable master at Beverly Hills taught me to post, so there!"

"I bet he never saw a cow, though. Nor a cow pony. But you'll learn. Say, Pintado's got class!"

"By inference, then, his rider hasn't!"

He laughed at her, waved and turned to his work. He had plenty to do, including erection of her tent and temporary home.

Thoroughly delighted with her mount, Ellen rode on off around the turn in the hill, out of sight. Some intuition, or some memory of conversation with Bill, warned her to get her bearings. She glanced at Mount Wrightson, then at Thunder Peak, which Bill had pointed out before. She couldn't be lost with these landmarks.

She rode a mile, two miles, up a gradually narrowing canyon.

The rocks presently became more and more intimate, rearing higher, leaning as if to squeeze her and Pintado in. She paused beside a gigantic century plant stalk, a dead flower from last spring, but still 20 feet tall. Other scrubby growths interested her. "This is my land!" she breathed. "My ranch!" It was exhilarating. She had never owned land before, and the possession of no other property in all the world, not even of gold, is so thoroughly satisfying.

Pintado had been in a stable for a week, hence was full of energy himself. He moved rapidly even when walking. He evidently was being put on the pay roll, Bill grinned after chinning with the lad.

"It's a $10 a week, Pablo," he told the boy. "Handy man, you. Whatever Miss Dale can think up for you to do, see?"

The boy was made supremely happy. He came, in time, to worship Bill Baron; he became Ellen's abject slave.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:
Up and about the ville at an early hour, seeing many, exchanging chat, but learning little of news. The coffee club held an extremely quiet session, the initiation of Bob Smith consisting of nothing more than a week jibe or two. Learned of a new lease on the Circle theatre and plans to remodel the showhouse.

There goes Laddie Goeller who won the Chamber of Commerce bouquet for May, the award being made on the youth's fine work in turning out the high school annual. Bob Brehmer donates the flowers each month and the selection is made by the C. of C. directors. The honor is bestowed monthly for outstanding accomplishment by a resident of the ville. So, Laddie has every right to be proud. He topped everyone for the month.

Dick Mader was graduated from high school this week. He is the ninth child of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Mader to complete the local course of education since 1920. Of course Dick and his brothers and sisters deserve congratulations, but the scrivener extends his congratulations to the fine parents, for putting nine children through high school is a really worth-while accomplishment.

The inspired compositor somewhat confused the statement regarding Memorial Day celebration. The scrivener wrote "I am firmer than ever in my conviction that we give too much consideration to those already slain in battle and not enough to those yet to be legally murdered."

Chatted with L. E. Davidson, the hardware man, out for an airing, and then engaged in my daily verbal dual with Bill Murray, the plumber, who has made all the money he ever will need and who really enjoys life. Fred Mills, former manager of Cussins & Fearn, dropped into the office for a brief chat, being here from Zanesville. Herb Suver, former manager of Gallaher's and now a salesman out of Chicago, also was in the ville earlier in the week. Both men think this is one of the finest communities in the country and visit here as frequently as possible.

Shook hands with Ham Rodgers, just back from a health trip to Hot Springs, Ark., noted Joe Lynch breaking fast as usual on eggs, toast and coffee, and passed the time of day with Bill Hamilton and Clay Chalfin.

Home to pack against the tomorrow's jaunt into the Canadian wilds after muskies, pike, trout and pan fish. Clarence Wolf and Mayor Bill the car companions with Joe Burns, Bish Given and Earl Smith following a few hours later.

Poems That Live

FRIENDS

How good to lie a little while
And look up through the tree!
The Sky is like a kind big smile
Bent sweetly over me.

The Sunshine flickers through the lace
Of leaves above my head,
And kisses me upon the face
Like Mother, before bed.

The Wind comes stealing o'er the grass
To whisper pretty things;
And though I cannot see him pass,
I feel his careful wings.

So many gentle Friends are near
Whom one can scarcely see,
A child should never feel a fear,
Wherever he may be.

BABY'S CRIES SAVE FAMILY

PAINESVILLE, O. (U.P.)—A 5-months-old baby's cries saved the lives of five persons and prevented the burning of a farm home. The baby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kensing, was awakened by the light of a fire which destroyed two barns and a brooder house.

Mrs. Maxwell to Present 10 of Her Pupils

Miss Ruth Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Robinson, of S. Pickaway street, will be one of 14 voice pupils presented in recital, Monday evening, by Mrs. Dolores Maxwell of Chillicothe. The affair will be held at 8:15 o'clock in the W. Fifth street school auditorium.

Other pupils of Mrs. Maxwell who are members of her Circleville class and will sing at the recital are Miss Laura McGhee of Williamsport and Maynard Campbell of Atlanta. The summer class meets at the home of Mrs. James Moffitt, E. Franklin street.

Miss Robinson's selections include "The Snowdrop" by Gretchen-anoff, "By a Lovely Forest Pathway" by Griffes, and "Rain" by Curran.

Miss McGhee will sing "How Lovely is the Hand of God" by Loughbor, "Pierrot" by Watts, and "The Answer" by Perry.

"A Memory" by Ganz and "A Bowl of Roses" by Clarke are the two selections which Mr. Campbell will sing.

Miss Abbe Mills Clarke of W. Union street will play their piano accompaniments.

Royal Neighbors

The quarterly birthday party of the Royal Neighbors honoring those members whose birthday anniversaries are in the months of March, April, May and June was held in Modern Woodmen Hall, Friday evening.

A covered dish supper was served following a regular business session, under the direction of Mrs. May Madden. The table was centered with a large birthday cake, seasonable flowers and candles completing the attractive setting. The honored guests included Mrs. Herbert Johnson, Mrs. Joseph Wolfe, Mrs. Claude Robinson and Oscar Root. After the supper hour, Mrs. Mary Bennett presented each of them a bouquet of American Beauty roses. A social hour brought the meeting to a close.

happily it should be planted in a rich, moist soil.

If holly is planted in an unfavorable location it may live but it will not thrive. Under favorable conditions leaf spots may develop as shown in this Garden-Graph. Spotted leaves when they occur on holly should be removed and burned. Do not pull the leaves off; instead they should be snipped off with a pair of scissors, close to the stem.

There is only one pest which affects holly, and this is the leaf miner which produces yellowish-brown mines in the green leaves. The young of the leaf miner hatch from eggs laid on the underside of the leaves. To control leaf miner on holly spray with a nicotine-soap solution early in June and again in July.

MOORE, MOFFITT PRESENT VERSION OF DISNEY SHOW

Friday morning and again Tuesday afternoon, Philip Moore presented "Snow White" to the students of Circleville schools for the first time.

The play is Philip Moore's version of Walt Disney's movie. The characters of Snow White, the Queen, the Huntsman, the Prince, the dwarfs—Doc, Sleepy, Grumpy, Bashful, Sneezy, Happy and Dopey—and the Magic Mirror were all made by Philip. Recorded music of the original pieces from the film, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was used.

Dopey completely stole the scenes from the real heroine Snow White. Grumpy also displayed his usual disgruntled disposition. Sneezy still had his hay fever, Doc still stuttered. Sleepy was still yawning. Bashful was as shy as ever, and of course the jolliest one of the bunch was Happy. An unusual feat was performed by the huntsman when he drew his knife from his belt and later cast it away.

The settings were designed by Philip. The Donald Duck band, which made its debut at this program was made by Jim Moffitt.

Assisting Philip were Joanne Conyers, Jim Moffitt, David Orr, stage assistant, Jim Price, and Martin Walters.

FACULTY LEAVES FOR ALL POINTS

Teachers, after bidding fond farewells to the sacred portals of dear old C.H.S. for the Summer, will head for all points north, east, west and south.

Those expecting to remain in Circleville are: Mr. Cress, Mr. Jewett, Miss Ryan and Mrs. Watts. Mr. Jewett expects to take a trip west late in the Summer.

Ohio State Summer school will find Mr. Fischer, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Lea, Mr. Pace, and Mr. Terhune in its midst. Mr. Lea will study industrial arts and specializing guidance; Mr. Johnson, dramatics and public speaking; and Mr. Pace, French, Spanish, public speaking, and art. Mr. Fischer and Mr. Terhune expect to receive Master's degrees this Summer.

Miss Sayre will be in a girl scout camp at Cincinnati for two weeks and then in Fort Wayne for eight weeks.

Miss Brown expects to go to Yellowstone National Park; Mrs. Downing, to Booth Bay Studios, Maine; Miss Grosvenor, to Michigan; Miss Mattinson, to South Charleston and then to Pensacola, Florida, for two or three weeks; Miss Pigman, Cincinnati; Miss Rains, Grandview and then Florida; Miss Rooney expects to go east; and Mr. Zaenglein, Wapakoneta.

As yet Mr. Barricklow and Miss Teegardin are undecided.

J.R. COMMITTEES EXPRESS THANKS

Chairmen of the Junior-Senior banquet committees were greatly aided by several business firms and individuals in the preparation of hall decorations and the dinner.

The junior class wishes to thank those persons through these columns.

Among them are W. T. Grant Co., Barnhill's Container Corporation, Kippy Kit Co., Rinehart's, Forest Cemetery, Mrs. Mary Beck, Mrs. Floyd Seymour, Mrs. W. Emerson Downing, and C. F. Zaenglein.

The class also expresses its appreciation to the mothers of juniors who prepared the dinner and to all who donated roses to the decoration committee.

'38 CLASS SONG

We, the class of '38
Sing out our praises true
Goodbye to dear old Everts
Our high school days are through.

To our teachers and our classmates
We bid a sad adieu
But our hearts will fill with gladness
When e'er we think of you.

We, the class of '38
Bid C. H. S. goodbye
Our hearts are heavy laden
But our hopes are soaring high.

Chorus
C. H. S.
Our happiness reigned supreme
We hope that e'er inside your doors
Others will witness the same.

RUTH CLARK EDITS COLUMN'S LAST ISSUE

Ruth Clark edited the Red and Black for the week of May 31—June 3. Her assistant was Mary Hays.

The journalism class, publishers of the Red and Black, is under the supervision of Miss Margaret Mattinson. Class members are Medreth Bach, Ruth Clark, Betty Colville, Joanne Conyers, Mary Fickard, Lawrence Goeller, Harriet Harman, Mary Hays, Marjorie Leach, Mary Newmyer, Helen Sayre and Richard Weldon.

This thirty-sixth issue completes the year's volume.

CERTIFICATES OF HONOR AWARDED

Thursday morning, the teachers and pupils of Circleville high school assembled in the auditorium to pay recognition to those who won awards during the past year and who had not received them.

Emily Gunning, Robert Lane, Robert Fickard, Bonnie Ballou, and Lawrence Goeller won second, third, sixth, tenth, and fourteenth places respectively, in the general scholarship test for high school seniors, in Pickaway county. Emily also received an award of honorable mention in the state in this same test.

State certificates of honorable mention were given to Ruth Clark, English; Mary Hays, French; and Adabelle May, chemistry. Mary Adele Snider won fourth place in the state in Latin I.

The upper twenty-five percent of eighth grade award winners in the state test are as follows:

Ruth Bowsher, Joanne Conyers, Eugene Dewey, and Walter H. Nelson, were presented debate letters.

BAND AND TRACK LETTERS GIVEN

Wednesday, June 1, Coach Jack Landrum awarded track letters to the following boys. They are listed as to the most points each achieved for his team this year. The list includes Frank Woodward, Robert Owens, Kenny Smith, Marvin Jenkins, Harold Smith, Charles Zaenglein, Paul Walters, Robert Liston, James Davis, and Bill Stebelton. Tye Davis received a manager's letter.

Although the letters have not arrived the following list of pupils, as announced by C. F. Zaenglein, Thursday, will receive band letters. On the list are Robert Brehmer, Eugene Dewey, William Heffner, David Hilyard, Gale Hitchcock, Donald Jackson, Barbara Johnson, Russ Liston, William Lutz, Loring Norris, and Bill Thornton.

To be eligible to receive a letter, a student must have been a member of the band for at least two years and have completed his freshman year in high school.

SENIORS SEE PAPER MILL AND ENJOY TAR HOLLOW

Many members of the senior class have presented beaming but sunburned faces to the world this past week. The slightly parboiled condition is due to the sunny day on which the seniors took their annual outing.

Tuesday morning, the class drove to the Mead Paper Corporation in Chillicothe to watch the procedure used in making certain types of paper. The Mead Corporation makes paper for Life, Woman's Home Companion, Collier's, McCall's, Child's Life, and many smaller magazines. The company also specializes in paper to be used for bread wrappings and household purposes.

After the tour of the plant, the class traveled to Tar Hollow, where the students enjoyed a picnic lunch. During the afternoon many went swimming or hiking.

Miss Margaret Mattinson and Samuel Johnson accompanied the group.

GOELLER ORDERS 15 EXTRA COPIES FOR SALE TODAY

Students, faculty, and townspeople alike acclaimed the Circleville high school annual publication, "The Circle", today as the finest publication ever issued from the school.

Circulation of the annual was stated this week, and all of the three hundred copies ordered have been sold. Lawrence Goeller, business manager, was able Friday to procure at least fifteen additional copies of the year-book from the printer. These are expected to arrive Saturday and will be on sale at the book room. Anyone wishing a copy is urged to subscribe at once. It will be impossible to obtain others after this supply is exhausted.

Complete in every detail, beautifully bound, filled with art, including snapshots and more formal pictures of school board, faculty, students, organizations and athletic teams, "The Circle" is one that every graduate of Circleville high school will want as a prized possession.

Engraving in the annual was done by Jahn and Olier, Chicago, and the printing and binding, by the Oxford Press, Oxford, Ohio.

"The Circle" is dedicated to Virgil M. Cress, commercial instructor, faculty manager of athletics, Stodge club and junior class adviser. Mr. Cress' picture appears on the second page of the book with the following tribute.

"Greatness lies not in the measure of a man's deeds but in the love he inspires in those with whom he lives and works."

The annual staff included Mary Newmyer, editor-in-chief; Louise Helwagen, Edna Briner, Robert Trump and Mary Hays, associates; Margaret A. Mattinson, faculty adviser; Lawrence E. Goeller, business manager; Emily Gunning, Clark Hunsicker, David Jackson and Robert Owens, associates; Robert Terhune, faculty adviser; Charles F. Zaenglein, photography.

28 HOLD RECORDS FOR ATTENDANCE

Recognition is given through the Red and Black to those pupils who were neither tardy nor absent throughout the school term of 1937-38. The freshmen lead the list with ten; sophomores, nine; seniors, seven, and juniors, two.

On the freshmen list were Mark Coffland, Joanne Downing, Wilbur Greenlee, Rose Ann Griner, Virgil Havens, Ross Kerr, Robert Melvin, Mary Schreiner, Nolan Sims, and Sam Stubbs.

James Denman, Edna Henn, David Hilyard, Bonita Hulse, Goldie Isaac, Avenelle Martin, Vonalee Martin, June May and Betty Young were the sophomores.

Seniors were Harriet Beery, Harriet Binkley, Eddie Howell, Marcellette Kerr, William Niles

Concert last of the season

Sunday Evening Hour—

CBS, 8 p. m.

Katherine Meisle, contralto, will be featured as guest singer, and John Barbirolli will conduct the orchestra in this, the last broadcast of the season for this weekly symphonic program. W. J. Cameron, Ford spokesman, will speak briefly at intermission.

BARRYMORE, BARRIE

John Barrymore and his talented wife, Elaine Barrie, will be guests on the Eddie Cantor program Monday, June 6, at 6:30 p. m. over the CBS network.

Also on hand to aid in the festivities will be the regular Cantor troupe including Bert (Mad Russian) Gordon, Edgar Fairchild and his orchestra, Announcer Walter King, and the new comedy sensation of the air waves—Hattie Noel.

SWING AND INSPIRATION

Benny Goodman, "King of Swing," avers that even the best swing players have moments and night of staidness when their ideas run to formal figures and cliches in which the improvisational flame that is the heat of "hot" jazz is lacking. That's why, he says, it is not reasonable to expect that all the performances in the space say, of two hours, will be equally powered by inventiveness and originality. Much depends on what swing players like to call "inspiration."

GENEROUS JAN

Maestro Jan Garber is famous on radio row for his unselfishness in helping members of his orchestra further their own ambitions. Russ Brown, Garber's romanticized baritone, is a good example, for the minute "Genial Jan" learned of Brown's operatic ambitions, he secured the services of Edward Novis, famous singing teacher, for his star singer.

Ohio Relief Program Defeated By Ballot

COLUMBUS, June 4—(UP)—The so-called "agreed" relief program was reduced to ruins today by action of the house of representatives in killing one major relief bill and badly crippling a stop-gap emergency plan.

It first overwhelmingly defeated the Almdinger bill which would have enabled cities to finance part of their relief costs by levying taxes now reserved to the State.

Then before adjournment for the week-end, it passed the Laderman-DeRichter bill appropriating $1,000,000 for loans to hard pressed urban centers, but in such a form that it is worthless unless corrected later.

The setbacks threw the relief situation into an even more chaotic state, with leaders admitting despair in their attempts to work out an acceptable plan. Some legislators felt defeat of enabling legislation left the state solely responsible for relief financing, but the question of how the money is to be raised remained unanswered. There is determined opposition to new taxes and only lukewarm support for extending existing taxes and borrowing in anticipation of their collection.

The loan bill taking $1,000,000 from the highway fund to be repaid from sales tax allocations, barely passed 71 to 38. But the opposition, led by Rep. Samuel A. Anderson, D., Licking, a rural member of the committee which investigated cities' needs, refused to vote the emergency clause necessary to put such a measure into immediate effect.

Unless the emergency clause is added later—a possibility Speaker Frank R. Uible described as remote—the bill, if finally enacted in its present form, would not become effective for three months and hence would be of no value. The emergency clause got only 70 votes with 92 required.

The house refused even to debate the tax enabling legislation and swamped the Almdinger bill under an avalanche of adverse votes. The emergency clause received only 37 votes in this case and the bill itself mustered a like number with 70 needed for passage.

Rep. Anderson based his opposition to the loan bill on the plea that it would endanger highway funds despite the fact that the measure assures payment from future sales tax distributions. He attempted to win reconsideration of both the bill and the emergency clause, but city men, fearing his purpose was to destroy the bill entirely, beat him down on that point.

House leaders held some slight hope that the senate might pass the loan bill with the emergency clause attached and that the house would then concur to tide cities over until a relief program is finally enacted. The senate and the house will reconvene Monday.

Through its president, Earl E. Hagerman, Dayton finance director, the League of Ohio Municipalities insisted that with defeat of local enabling legislation the relief problem must be solved as entirely a state responsibility.

"Without this enabling legislation," Hagerman said, "cities cannot participate in matching. Plans will now have to be made to provide funds on a state-wide basis."

MRS. MARTHA PLUMMER, 88, DIES AT ASHVILLE HOME

Mrs. Martha Angeline Plummer, 88, widow of Thomas Plummer, died at her home 205 East street, Ashville, at 3:20 a. m. Saturday of complications.

Mrs. Plummer was born Jan. 24, 1850 in Knox county, Ind., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson O'Haver. She is survived by four children, Ida, Maude and Samuel Plummer, at home, Mrs. Nellie Brooks, of Zaleski, O.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday in the Ashville United Brethren church with the Rev. O. W. Smith officiating. Burial will be in the South Bloomfield cemetery in charge of E. F. Schlegel.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Surpassing all their previous screen appearances in the language of music, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are seen and heard in an exquisite panorama of romance and song in "The Girl of the Golden West" which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre.

The lovely new songs heard in the picture include "Senorita," "Soldiers of Fortune," "The Wind in the Trees," "Shadows on the Moon," "Who Are We to Say," "From Sun-up to Sundown" and "Mariachi," which is the theme of a lavish Spanish festival.

In the story, Mary, owner of a dance hall, is loved by the gambling sheriff, Jack Rance. On her way to Monterey her stage coach is held up by the romantic masked bandit, Ramirez, with whom she later falls in love, believing him to be Lieutenant Dick Johnson. A former sweetheart betrays Ramirez. He escapes, wounded, in a gun fight with the sheriff but is captured later in Mary's cabin.

After being caught cheating in a game of cards with Rance for the bandit's life, Mary agrees to marry the sheriff if he will liberate Ramirez. On the day of the wedding Rance again finds the lovers together and the picture ends with a very ingenious climax.

CINCINNATI MAY

TAKE NEW STEP

IN 'BINGO' WAR

CINCINNATI, June 4—(UP)—City officials today hinted "drastic action" would be the next move in this city's "bingo war" after uniformed policemen were unsuccessful in their attempt to "pick-et" churches where the bingo games are held.

The "war" was declared formally June 1 when the city government ceased to issue any new permits for bingo games. City Manager C. O. Sherrill said that issuance of the permits was, in effect, "legalizing gambling."

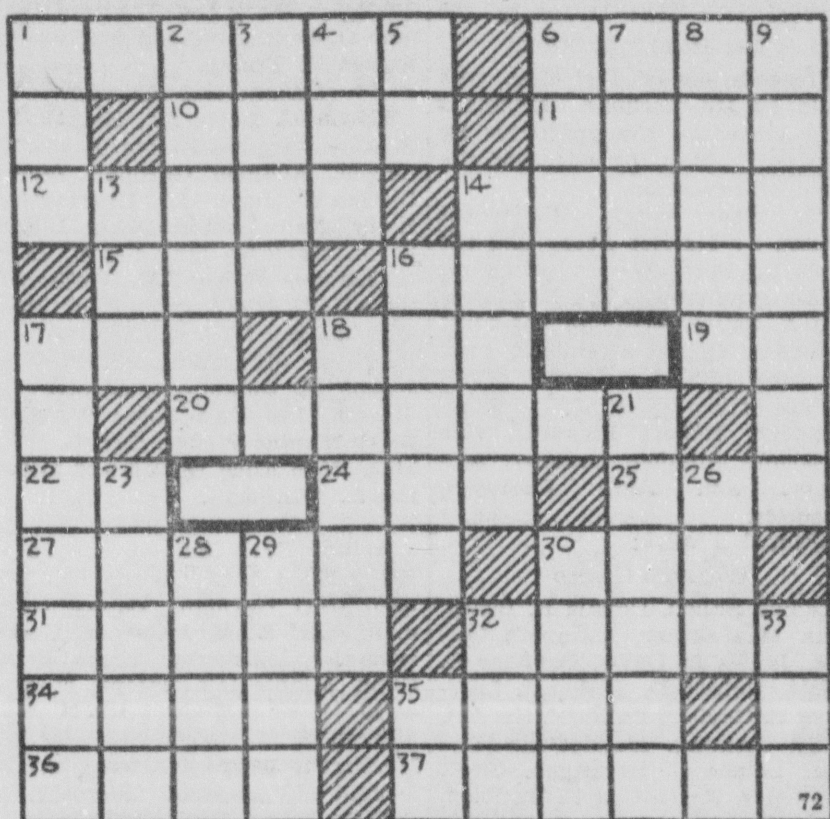

But the ban did not stop three churches from holding their bingo contests as scheduled. Despite the presence of police outside, an estimated 5,000 persons walked inside one church to try their luck.

Similar situations occurred at two other churches. Police did not interfere with operation of the games.

Sherrill remained silent on future moves. Police Chief Eugene T. Weatherly, however, hinted "drastic action" unless the bingo prohibition is obeyed. Mayor James G. Stewart received 13 letters in one day in protest against the announced ban.

Miss Maxine Robertson, Athens, home service director of the Gas Co. in the district including the Circleville office, has been transferred to the Toledo district. Miss Robertson will assume her new duties Monday.

SUPPOSE YOUR pair is using the strong original no trump convention, and your partner, call in passed by your partner. Suppose fourth hand kindly keeps it open with two of a minor and that is allowed to ride to your mate. Then suppose he bids two of a major and fourth hand passes it to you. Don't you know from this that your partner has nothing but a bit of length in his suit, with no honor strength? In other words, don't you know enough to pass and let him play the hand?

After passes by North and East, South started the bidding here with 1-No Trump. North passed this and East put in a bid of 2-Diamonds. Having had no response from his partner, South feared making a further bid, so passed. North, however, figured that if his partner had a strong no trump hand they were perhaps being cheated out of a part score, and as South surely held something in spades, a bid of two in that suit could not go wrong. South, however, misread the inference and went on to 2-No Trumps. A club was led by West and East's club K lost to the A. The spade K was South's next play, but when East won with the A he switched to a club to the Q of West, who returned another to the J. Thereafter South was helpless and was slaughtered, whereas 2-Spades might have been made.

MANY ATTEND DEMOCRATIC MEETING, HEAR ADDRESS BY GOVERNOR'S AIDE

ALL COUNTIANS ASKED TO JOIN NEW YOUTH UNIT

Next Session Of Pickaway Club Scheduled For Friday, June 17

Approximately 125 persons attended the business meeting of the newly formed League of Young Democrats of Pickaway County held Friday evening in Memorial hall. Twice that number enjoyed a dance that followed the business meeting, going to the event after the commencement exercises in Circleville high school.

Wray Bevins, executive secretary to Gov. Martin L. Davey, who recently spoke before the Rotary club in connection with the Northwest Territory celebration, was the speaker.

Mr. Bevins linked democracy with the opening of the territory, with the Ordinance of 1787 as the birth certificate of the nation. Jefferson, the father of democracy, he explained wrote the ordinance. He spoke of the many rights of citizens incorporated in the ordinance, including the rights of assembly, free speech and trial by jury. He told of the revision of the laws of Virginia by Jefferson and how through him the right to vote was received.

All Urged To Join

The speaker appealed to those present to join the organization and that every township, village and city in the county be represented. Purpose of the league is to study the fundamentals of government.

Accomplishments of President Roosevelt were reviewed by Mr. Bevins. These included bank deposit insurance, social security, aid for the blind and aged and dependent children, unemployment insurance and the workman's compensation.

Oscar Loyer, president of the State League of Young Democrats, scheduled to speak at the meeting, was detained by business and could not attend.

Ernest Weiler, temporary chairman of the county organization, presided at the meeting. Reports of the first meeting held in the state office building were given. The next meeting will be held Friday June 17. A permanent slate of officers will be elected at that time.

Many Introduced

Candidates and prominent Democrats of the county and employees of the various state departments were introduced. Harry Bussey, collector of internal revenue, Columbus, attended the meeting.

The Casa Rey orchestra furnished music for dancing.

ARTHUR H. BOOKWALTER, 61, DIES OF COMPLICATIONS

Arthur H. Bookwalter, 61, died Saturday at 9:35 a. m. in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus, complications causing death. Mr. Bookwalter was a resident of Hallsville.

Surviving are his widow, Jennie Armstrong Bookwalter; two sons, Merle J., Columbus, and Clyde, California; two stepsons, George Swepton, Laurelville, and Kenneth, Hilliards; two half-brothers, Robert Bookwalter, New Albany, and Lee Bookwalter, Michigan.

The funeral will be Sunday at 2 p. m. at the home in Hilliards with the Rev. A. L. Slack officiating. Burial will be in Hallsville cemetery by H. E. Defenbaugh and Son.

TERWILLIGER CALLS HIS COMMITTEE TO MEETING

Members of all committees in connection with the Northwest Territory celebration in Circleville last May 9 are asked to attend an important meeting in the Albaugh chapel Monday at 8 p. m.

The meeting has been called by Meeker Terwilliger, general chairman of the event. Purpose of the meeting is to submit a final report on the celebration.

More than $31,000,000 in gold has been returned to the U. S. treasury since the withdrawal of gold from general circulation.

PETTIT'S TIRE SHOP COMPLETES ITS REMODELING

Expansion and complete remodeling program at Pettit's Tire Shop, S. Court street, has been completed.

A new structural glass front, black and cream in color, with aluminite trimming has been installed. In the expansion the store room formerly used by Sieverts' confectionery has been added to the Pettit establishment. Center entrances were constructed and the rooms connected in the interior with an archway.

Interior of both rooms has been completely redecorated, new floor covering laid and modern light fixtures installed. The remodeling program required approximately a month.

Guy Pettit, owner, announced a complete line of washers, refrigerators, radios, sweepers and electrical appliances will be handled on the north side of his business place. The south room will be used for tires, batteries and a line of auto accessories.

A complete Westinghouse electrical kitchen was being installed in the appliance department Saturday.

establish low-rent dwellings for wage-earners; to carry electricity to rural homes and farms; and to contribute toward raising the income level of all farmers.

Technically, the bill is now back in the house, but only a formality remains before it goes to conference. Sen. Alva B. Adams, D. Colo., its floor manager, had the senate conferees appointed before last night's adjournment. In addition to himself, Sens. Kenneth McKellar, D. Tenn., James F. Byrnes, D. S. C., Frederick Hale, R. Me., and John G. Townsend, Jr., R. Del., were appointed.

Sine Die Expected

Barkley, who held the senate in continuous session 13 hours yesterday to get it passed, said that if wages and hours, and recovery conferees "work diligently," nothing should prevent sine die adjournment of the 75th congress next week.

The recovery bill started out from the house appropriations committee aggregating $3,054,425,000. The house added $100,000,000 for the Rural Electrification administration. The senate appropriations committee raised the total to $3,247,025,000, chiefly by adding $212,000,000 for parity price payments to farmers. Before the senate finally settled on its still larger total it added a $300,000,000 housing authorization.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU

BY BOB BURNS

Once in a while you see a newsreel showing a bunch of wealthy people or nobility and I can't help thinkin' some of 'em would look mighty funny if you could forget who they are.

It reminds me of the time I went down home for a visit and was invited to a big reception at Aunt Sophie Ledbetter's house. I pointed to a lady over in the corner and asked Aunt Sophie, "Who's that long, lanky woman over there?" Aunt Sophie says, "Not so loud—that lady jest inherited $50,000.00 and she's tall and stately now."

CASH GIVES UP HOPE THAT BOY, 5, STILL LIVES

Florida Man Talks With Chief G-man In Effort To Uncover Clues

Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation who is leading G-men in the hunt for the kidnapers.

"Mr. Hoover visited us last night and said he naturally expects to solve this case," Cash said. "Both Mrs. Cash and myself want to express our deepest and most sincere thanks for the hundreds of people who have dropped their work and jobs to come to our assistance in the attempt to find little Jimmy and the kidnapers."

"We are very grateful."

It was Cash's second appearance outside his apartment since the kidnaping. Yesterday, he rushed to a flooded rockpit near Homestead in response to one of many false reports the body had been found.

Wearily after the frantic week, he returned to his home, reviewing the situation with his wife, and resigned himself to the belief his son is dead.

Meanwhile, G-men took a new tack in their manhunt. They decided that the criminals had been motivated by a desire for vengeance on the father almost as much as by a desire for money. Hoover, directing a small army of G-men, and the father were closeted for 45 minutes and when they left, Hoover's assistant carried a bundle of clothing—understood to be the baby's clothing. It was reported that the father had gone over in detail his entire business career in this Redlands farming county 25 miles South of Miami and had named any enemies he had made.

Acting on Hoover's orders, his men established semi-permanent headquarters here, indicating that the federal determination to capture the criminals would not abate, no matter how long it takes. It was apparent that they had not a single clue to the whereabouts of the child's body (no one believed that there was any but the barest possibility of his being yet alive) and very slender clues, if any, to the kidnapers. Though the authorities maintained the customary secrecy, it was a general impression that the case might drag on for weeks—even months.

TWO JAILED FOR THEFT SERIES IN STOUTSVILLE

LANCASTER, June 4—Arrest of two Stoutsville men is believed to have cleared a series of burglaries that plagued store owners and residents of Clearcreek township during the last three months.

Those arrested by the sheriff's department are Harry Kocher, 22, and John I. Conrad, 46.

Included in the places alleged to have been entered by the men were the Stoutsville high school, three times; Elson Dozer hardware, three times; Simon Stout's filling station, twice, and once in Drake's bakery and store; Kenneth Greeno store, Hill's garage and Stout's hardware.

It is alleged also that the pair visited cottages at the Lancaster campgrounds in addition to entering several private residences.

She pointed out the great service rendered by the radio to police departments, in times of disaster and for the general entertainment of the public. She termed it an "injustice to the old ballads" to play them in the tempo of jazz. Parents of the graduates, and friends were welcomed by Miss Harman.

"Visual Education" was the topic of an address of Miss Gunning. "Students remember things better when they are seen rather than read," she said. "Many difficult problems and experiments can be explained more easily when seen." She explained that graduates of 25 years ago each gave speeches. Now only two speak. Miss Gunning predicted changing times will bring more visual education to the school system.

The valedictorian expressed appreciation of the graduates to residents for the opportunity given them to obtain a high school education.

The program was opened with the overture "Venetian Carnival," by Zamenik, played by the high school orchestra. The Rev. S. S. Davis, pastor of the Calvary Evangelical church, presented the invocation. Two selections, "Elfin Dance," by Greig, and "Listen to the Lambs," by Dett, were sung by the senior girls' glee club under the direction of Miss Grace Teegardin. Robert D. Fickardt sang a vocal solo "The House by the Side of the Road," by Foss.

Presentation of the class was made by Mr. Terhune. Diplomas were presented the graduates by Charles H. May, president of the board of education.

The class song, with words written by Harriet Beery and the music by Betty Weiler, was sung by the graduates. The Rev. Herman A. Sayre, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, gave the benediction.

Class officers were Edwin Bach, president; Robert Fickardt, vice president; Adamae Gardner, secretary, and Ruth Robinson, treasurer.

Graduates were:

I Save My Dollars

"Yes, sir! I take what money I can spare out of each pay envelope and deposit it in a Savings Account.

Fine, I'd say! And, if I forget my wifes right after me and doesn't LET UP till I PAY UP!

Between the two of 'em I'm going to build up a good cash reserve in the next few years.

Safe? Listen—your money is insured against loss up to $5000.000 by the Government. If there's anything safer than that, you tell me!"
